KING'S SUMMER VISIT AT SANDRINGHAM POSTPONED

Plane To-day On Way From Maine Coast to Rome

Two Fliers Aboard Amphibian Attempt Atlantic Crossing

Escort Plane Sends Back Word That Pathfinder Is Well on Its Course From Old Orchard to Italy; Roger Q. Williams Is Pilot and L. A. Yancey Navigator.

Old Orchard, Maine, July 8.—The monoplane Pathfinder, with Pilot Roger Q. Williams and Navigator Lewis A. Yancey aboard, took off from the beach here with Rome as its destination at 8.49 a.m. to-day, eastern standard time.

The fliers expected to make the 4,700-mile flight in forty-five to fifty hours.

The plane took off after a run of about a mile and headed due south gaining an altitude of about 100 feet as it left the beach. The ship then made a wide swing and headed east on its course until lost to sight in the fog.

THREE PLANES AS ESCORT

Three planes accompanied the Rome-bound plane. A United States coast-guard amphibian was on the left, a small commercial plane on the right and a large commercial amphibian close to the rear.

Aboard the commercial amphibian were a dozen persons, among them Thea Rasche, German aviatrix.

The small commercial plane returned to the beach in a few minutes.

The Pathfinder seemed to be just able to hold the hundred feet altitude as it passed out of sight. That was the ceiling of the machine as computed by Williams before the take-off.

Food taken for the flight consisted of roast chicken, three quart bottles of coffee, three quart bottles of chocolate bars, eight oranges, six apples and a bottle of liquor.

Yancey said they planned to land at an airfield about fifteen miles south of Rome.

"I am a working man and I am going out to do a day's work," Yancey said when newspapermen asked him for a statement just before the take-off.

Williams, as usual, would not comment.

BENZOL ADDED
Before the plane left, thirty gallons of benzol were added to the 500 gallons of fuel to aid in the take-off.

GUARDS WINNING RUM BATTLE ON DETROIT RIVER

Windsor, Ont., July 8.—The capture of one of their larger craft Saturday has convinced the masters of the Amherstburg rum fleet of the futility of further attempts at this time to run to the United States blockade in the lower Detroit River at its junction with Lake Erie. It was learned to-day.

A trek to Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River to be made this afternoon. Many rum boats are lying at the Amherstburg docks, but only fourteen of them contain loads, and these craft have been at the docks for the last ten days.

Rowboats with outboard motors, known to the river police as skipjacks, are getting through the river blockade. It is admitted.

The boat caught Saturday on its run from Amherstburg carried 500 cases of beer and forty cases of whisky. The catch was made by a United States coastguard cutter running through a fog at the head of the lakes.

GIRLS LOST THREE AND HALF DAYS IN FOREST ARE FOUND

Liverpool, N.S., July 8.—Search for the three children lost in the forest back of Queen's County village for three days and nights ended successfully last evening when the little girls were found alive.

Since Hazel Hall, aged seven; Doris Martin, five, and her sister, Mildred, four, were missing from their homes at noon on Thursday, 200 men had searched the woods in the gradually waning hope the children would be discovered in safety.

They are now under the care of

Rockefeller Ninety To-day

Tarrytown, N.Y., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller, master of the fine art of living, celebrated his ninetieth birthday to-day.

Observance of the day brought little deviation from the daily routine by which the veteran oil magnate has learned to be healthy and happy.

SHIP IS SUNK BY EXPLOSION NEAR ENGLAND

London, July 8.—Lloyds reported last night that an unknown vessel had been sunk by an explosion near the Smith Knoll lightship, off the Norfolk coast. The Danish steamship Anneberg wireless the information.

May McAvoy, Idol Of Screen, Is Now Honeymooning Here

Actress Who First Introduced "Talkie" Pictures Visits City as Mrs. Maurice Cleary; Marriage Will Not Interfere With Her Career; Star Likes Victoria So Well That Stay Is Extended to Week.

Marriage and a screen career are not dissociated, in the opinion of May McAvoy, screen idol, who is registered at the Empress Hotel to-day as Mrs. Maurice Cleary.

"I have no intention of renouncing the screen just because I am married and my husband would not wish me to abandon my career," said the petite star when asked by The Times whether her newest experience would take her out of the picture world.

"I love my work and I am going to stay with it."

"My contract with Warner Bros. expired in January after having starred in 'No Defence,' and knowing that I was getting married, I did not sign up again, although I have since had several tempting offers. It will be soon enough to think of that when I get back to Hollywood," she added demurely.

IN LOVE WITH VICTORIA

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Cleary arrived in Victoria yesterday from Vancouver, having motored up the coast from the southern California screen city.

"I think this is one of the most beautiful cities I have seen, and we have decided to prolong our stay a week," said Mrs. Cleary. "At no point during our trip have I been so impressed with the beauty of a place."

"We have no definite plans so I suggested to my husband that we stay here for a while, and as he likes the place, he readily fell in with the proposal," went on Mrs. Cleary when the interviewer asked whether the honeymoon would be cut short in view of the appeals of the movie picture directors to secure her signature to a contract.

"This is the first time I have been to Victoria, and I want to see more of it," said Miss McAvoy, who smiled approval of the use of the name by which she is so well-known in the movie firmament. "We shall play golf, see things and have a really good time. Everything is so lovely here."

Mr. and Mrs. Cleary had planned to visit Lake Louise and Banff. Their plans were abruptly changed when they motored off the ferry here.

Log Export Tax To Be Argued Soon In London

Vancouver, July 8.—A Victoria dispatch to The Vancouver Daily Province says:

"J. Lewis, K.C., prominent London barrister, is taking charge of the British Columbia Government's appeal to the Privy Council in London against a decision of provincial courts that the existing log export tax is invalid. It was announced at the Attorney-General's Department to-day."

"The Government is asking for the right to go direct to the Privy Council without argument in the Canadian Supreme Court, and permission to do so is expected at any time. In constitutional cases of this sort, a direct appeal is not unusual. The case will be argued in the Autumn, when the Government, represented by H. B. Robertson, K.C., of Vancouver, also will argue the validity of the Produce Marketing Act."

SALARY INQUIRY

Ottawa, July 8.—All Government employees, whether they come within the scope of the Civil Service Act or not, are to be brought within the investigation of the royal commission which was appointed some time ago and whose function was to inquire into the salaries of technical men. This is made plain in an order-in-council, made public here to-day.

CHICAGO-BERLIN PLANE IS FLYING

Machine Carrying Three Men Leaves Point on Hudson Bay Coast

Ottawa, July 8.—The amphibian plane "untin" Bowler was still in the air somewhere over the northern wastes bounding the east coast of Hudson Bay at 2.10 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, to-day.

A message from the Government radio station at Port Burwell, at the eastern entrance of Hudson Strait to the Department of Marine and Fisheries here read:

Faint sign of plane's generator faded at Cape Howe's Advance 210 E.S.T.

The plane sent out no signals and nothing was known of its actual whereabouts.

Ottawa, July 8.—The amphibian aeroplane "untin" Bowler took the air to-day from an undetermined point in the Hudson Bay country, continuing its flight from Chicago to Berlin by way of Greenland and Iceland.

NO SIGNALS HEARD

The takeoff was indicated in a message received by the Canadian Government wireless office here from the station at Port Burwell, at the eastern entrance of Hudson Strait. The message said:

"Port Burwell—Hum of plane's generator distinctly heard at 10.30 a.m. Faded badly at intervals and no signals heard. At 10.40 a.m. there was a complete fade out and nothing further was heard up to the present, 11 a.m. E.S.T."

The Bowler's radio set does not function when the plane is not in flight. Those aboard the plane are Parker D. Cramer, pilot; Bob Guest, co-pilot; and Robert Woods, aviation editor of The Chicago Tribune.

PASSENGERS ARE TAKEN OFF SHIP AFTER COLLISION

Boston, July 8.—The Boston-bound coastal steamer Prince George, carrying 249 passengers, was in collision with the United States coastguard cutter Agassiz in a dense fog sixty-five miles east of Boston Light early yesterday.

The passengers, none of whom were injured, were transferred without disorder to the Agassiz, and some time later to the coastguard cutter Mojave, which landed them in Boston yesterday afternoon.

The Prince George, although one of her holds was full of water, proceeded slowly toward Boston after the accident, running slowly under her own power.

The coastguard destroyer Wainwright and the cutter Tuscarora stood by during the trip to lend aid should she need it. Captain Adelbert MacKinnon, a veteran of the Boston and Yarmouth Steamship Company's service, and his crew of eighty-one remained aboard the Prince George.

The Prince George limped into its berth at the Eastern Steamship docks about 6.30 o'clock. There was a gaping hole in the port bow about eight feet by six above the water line and extending below. The vessel was down by the head and listing slightly.

PEOPLE GIVE THANKS WITH KING GEORGE

City's Churches Crowded at Special Thanksgiving Services Yesterday

Provincial and Civic Heads Attend Christ Church Cathedral Service

Great congregations in all the city's churches yesterday morning joined with King George in public thanksgiving for his recovery. Many of the services followed closely the order used at Westminster Abbey, and all used some of the hymns and psalms of the London service.

At Christ Church Cathedral the special service incorporated the Collect, Epistle and Gospel for the King's Accession and special prayers and hymns used in Westminster Abbey. A large congregation assembled, including His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and his aides, Premier and Mrs. Tolmie and Miss Tolmie, Mayor and Mrs. Anson, Hon. R. H. Pooley and Mrs. Pooley, Hon. W. A. McKenzie and Mrs. McKenzie, Hon. W. Atkinson and Mrs. Atkinson and D. C. Coleman, vice-president of western lines of the C.P.R.

Dean Quanton preached on prayer and the sick, and pointed out that prayer for the recovery of the sick did not necessarily involve breach or denial of natural law any more than the "good bedside manner" of the doctor and the cheerful courage of the nurse, involve the breach of natural law. He asserted that prayer was to be regarded as much more than begging for something, being in the main co-operation with God. "Prayer aligns the heart with God's laws and will," the King in his message to his people evidently realized how much he owed to the prayers of his people," he concluded.

METROPOLITAN CHURCH
At Metropolitan United Church the Westminster Abbey service was followed. Rev. Dr. W. J. Sippell, in a brief address, pointed out that the occasion marked the nearest the world had yet approached to universal thanksgiving, and that more millions were united in recognition of God's

TEXAS-WINNIPEG FLIGHT RECORD

Pilot D. S. Zimmerly Creates New Non-stop Mark For Light Planes

Winnipeg, July 8.—A new world non-stop distance record for light planes was established yesterday when Dwight S. Zimmerly, a veteran flier from Brownsville, Texas, to Winnipeg, completed the 1,725-mile flight from Brownsville in sixteen hours to beat the previous distance record by 753 miles.

Last year Harry J. Brooks, in a plane weighing under 771 pounds, flew 972 miles on a record journey.

Zimmerly's little monoplane, a Baring N.B.-3, equipped with a six-horsepower motor, weighs 726 pounds.

FLEW THROUGH FOG
Fog, rain and bright sunshine made up the varied weather the pilot experienced in his cross-country flight.

At one time, shortly after the flight had commenced, he ran into a fog, the engine started to miss, and he could only reach an altitude of 400 feet. Soon the motor became adjusted and from then on it worked perfectly.

Winnipeg to-day tendered a civic reception in honor of Zimmerly.

LITTLE JOE

REAL ESTATE IS ONE THING THAT ALWAYS WILL BE CHEAP AS DIRT.

BUCKET BRIGADES
Flames approached so close to summer residences that owners and tenants had to wet down roofs and walls with water carried in buckets from the lake.

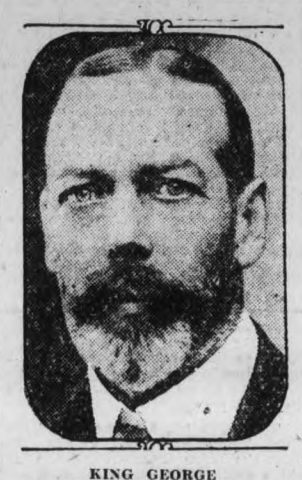

After the fire was brought under control gangs of men kept watch throughout the night, from six to eight men being continuously on duty. The fire is still smouldering this afternoon.

The flames attacked a number of tall firs, and flickering through the smoke pall, could be seen from the city early in the evening. Hundreds of parties motored out to the scene of the fire.

SUGAR PRICE RAISED

New York, July 8.—The Federal Sugar Refining Company announced to-day that to-morrow it would increase the price of sugar from 5 to 5 1/2 cents a pound.

City Swelters With Coast In Wave of Heat

In sympathy with the rest of Pacific Northwest, Victoria yesterday sweltered under what was the hottest sun of the year. Residents deserted the city for beach and camp resorts where the heat was somewhat mitigated but nevertheless many shoulders are blistered with sunburn to-day.

No relief is at present in sight. F. Napier Denison, superintendent at Gonzales Meteorological Observatory, forecasts extremely hot and dry weather for several days.

Yesterday's highest temperature as recorded on the instruments at Gonzales, was 74 degrees, but this was affected by a cool wind blowing throughout the day off the straits. In other parts of the city thermometers registered as much as ten degrees higher.

Four Hurt In Earth Shocks In California

Los Angeles, July 8.—Four persons, two men and two children, were injured in an earthquake which severely shook Los Angeles and communities within a thirty-mile radius at 8.45 a.m. to-day. The injuries were reported from Santa Fe Springs, oil town fifteen miles south of here.

Long Beach, Cal., July 8.—Earth tremors which lasted more than twenty seconds were felt throughout the central parts of this city at 8.47 this morning. The Press-Telegram building at Sixth Street and Pine Avenue was rocked for more than fifteen seconds, the machines in the composing room vibrating while they were getting out the first edition. The Spalding Building, across the street from the newspaper office, rocked perceptibly, and all big buildings in the city reported receiving the same shocks. It was the first severe quake ever authentically reported in this beach city. No reports of accident or damage had been received at the police station. The tremors were from north to south.

PERILOUS FIRE NEAR LANGFORD

Impelled yesterday afternoon by bush fires, caused by three cigarette butts, the famous Langford camping and holiday resort was only saved from destruction after residents and campers had struggled desperately until long after midnight.

Cigarette butts thrown from automobiles twice ignited roadside grass on Glen Lake Road, but were smothered by residents before danger developed. The third outbreak developed at superintendence, and worked into the bush before it was reported.

Under the direction of Fire Ranger P. Sweatman, Assistant Fire Ranger H. J. Dunn and officers of the provincial police, residents and passing motorists were mobilized, but pumps were brought into action and back fires started to protect the closely settled area. The work was hazardous, due to the dryness. The hold the fire had gained in the widespread brush caused fears that the whole of the settlement would be wiped out.

Flames approached so close to summer residences that owners and tenants had to wet down roofs and walls with water carried in buckets from the lake.

After the fire was brought under control gangs of men kept watch throughout the night, from six to eight men being continuously on duty. The fire is still smouldering this afternoon.

WIND PUZZLES MARKSMEN ON OPENING DAY AT BISLEY

Bisley Camp, Eng., July 8 (By Thomas T. ### X-RAY EXPERTS AGAIN ATTEND KING GEORGE

On Advice of His Doctors, Sovereign Postpones Departure From London for Summer Stay at Sandringham; Medical Bulletin Says Sinus in Right Chest Not Healing as Doctors Had Hoped.

SERVICE IN OLD ABBEY IMPRESSIVE

King Joins People in Returning Thanks After Long Illness

Simplicity and Earnestness Mark Ceremony Held in London

London, July 8 (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—Westminster Abbey was the scene of an impressive service yesterday which will have its place in history. King George and Queen Mary joined with their people, "in thanksgiving to Almighty God for His good providence whereby our most gracious sovereign has been delivered from severe illness, to the comfort of the whole realm, and for the signal of love and loyalty of his people made manifest in the time of trouble."

Probably there never was a more simple royal ceremony on a great occasion than that of yesterday. Their Majesties went to the Abbey with only two carriages, each with two attendants. (Concluded on Page 3)

DOCTORS' BULLETIN

The bulletin issued by the doctors earlier in the day said:

"The King was not fatigued by the ceremony of the thanksgiving service. His Majesty's general health is good. The condition of the sinus in the right chest has not made satisfactory progress."

In order to gain the assistance of a further X-ray examination, His Majesty's departure for Sandringham has been postponed for a short period."

The bulletin was signed by Sir Stanley Hewitt, Dr. Henry L. Hogg, Sir Hugh M. Rigby and Lord Dawson of Penn.

POSTPONEMENT IS BRIEF

In court circles the opinion was the physicians' bulletin was favorable, particularly as it indicated there was no fatigue. Dr. Graham Hodgson and his statement by the physicians that the postponement was only for a short period was regarded as very hopeful. A large number were waiting expectantly outside Buckingham Palace when finally the official announcement was issued.

It is understood His Majesty is not confined to bed as was once reported. In fact, to-day's bulletin emphasized that the King's general health was good.

It was stated on good authority that there was no rise in the King's temperature and that there should be no alarm, as the trouble was purely local.

TAKES SHORT WALK

London, July 8.—Although unable to leave today for Sandringham, the summer palace at Sandringham, King George was able to take his usual walk in the grounds of Buckingham Palace. His walk was brief, owing to the chilly temperature.

REPORT AWAITED

London, July 8.—Dr. Graham Hodgson, radiologist, to-day called at Buckingham Palace and was stated to have made a thorough X-ray examination of the King in accordance with a decision of His Majesty's physicians.

The King's doctors spent an hour and a half at Buckingham Palace this afternoon.

Dr. Hodgson will communicate the results of his examination to his colleagues probably to-morrow. Meanwhile no statement on the King's condition will be issued.

Air Pilots Taught To Master Dangers Of Flying In Fog

Veteran army fliers, heroes of many notable air adventures, proved themselves strangely helpless one afternoon not long ago in the clear air above Washington, D.C., and their planes in level flight, furnished observers on the ground first amusement, and then alarm, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

But unusually adverse wind conditions, engine trouble and faulty planes had nothing to do with the mysterious mishaps. They marked the start of a fog-flying school through which all officers on duty at the field were instructed to go for a period of several weeks.

An outgrowth of innumerable experiments based on the well-known fact that fog is one of the few hazards really feared by experienced aviators, the school's unique phase is the equipping of a Douglas observation ship with a cover on a framework that completely cuts off the pilot's view outside the plane. Unable to see sky or ground or anything beyond his cockpit, the pilot under the cover has to fly by instruments alone.

The idea of the class, and the design of the cover came from Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot on the record-breaking flight of the "Question Mark" last January. Under his supervision, army mechanics at Bolling field constructed a framework of four heavy wires from the windshield to the rear of the cockpit. Over these wires the canvas cover slides. Snap fasteners attach the edge inside the cockpit and the release mechanism is made instantaneous by the pulling of two wires, thereby enabling the pilot to emerge from "blind-flying" practice in case of emergency.

By a system of dual-control equipment the plane can be flown from either cockpit. In fact, the practice of the school, all experimental "fog flights," has been to have a supervising pilot stationed in the rear cockpit who can take over the controls at a moment's notice if the student, unwittingly throws the ship into a spin or drops dangerously near the ground. The rear pilot's job is also to note the course taken, so that the men will not lose their bearings with respect to the home landing field. Either pilot may take off the plane from the ground or land it, since it requires only a couple of seconds for the student to open the canvas cover to see his surroundings, and close it again.

Granted that the school fulfills the hopes of its backers, its substantial system may be included in the regulation training of all army pilots. As its very first student, the class had Major Howard C. Davidson, commandant of Bolling field, who made a half-hour fog flight. Next in order was Major James E. Fehet, chief of the army air corps.

"I never imagined a man could feel so absolutely helpless," Major Davidson commented following his attempt. "Nothing seems normal. Your senses tell you that a plane is in level flight when the instruments show it to be in a spin. After this experience, I can understand how it is that so many pilots have gone out of control in the fog."

Major Davidson pointed out that on his first blind effort, he made no attempt to hold the plane on a compass course, but tried merely to keep it level, depending on his bank-and-turn indicator to show whether he was in a climb or dive and his deviation from horizontal flight.

Capt. Eaker voiced similar sentiments, adding: "Fog training should be a part of every pilot's instruction. A navigator who finds himself in a fog, and is unable to hold his ship in level flight and to follow a compass course, naturally is in a dangerous situation. On the other hand, if he is trained to fly by instruments, then he is afforded a large measure of protection and should be able to get out of the fog without wrecking his ship. There's plenty of talk about flying by instinct, but the really intelligent boys will tell you that's the bunk. Science, not guesswork, is the modern-day aviator's safeguard."

Other aviation experts are even more enthusiastic in their praise of the new system of training. First of all, they point out, they have found abundant evidence, during their dizzy zigzagging through the air while underneath the canvas cover, that, once a plane starts turning when there is no horizon or other visible object to guide them, the ship can go into spins or deep spirals with astonishing speed; and, even if these irregular maneuvers are recognized early, they often cannot be corrected quickly because of the natural confusion due to the effects of rotation.

Still other experienced fliers, to whom, normally, the idea of taking such elementary fog instruction would seem almost unnecessary, were amazed to learn that they had acquired certain habits of reacting to sensations that, in case of sudden encounters with fog or extreme darkness, might be terribly dangerous. In this regard, even their instruments play them false.

A curious contraption called the "fog dispenser" has been the subject of numerous experiments at Bolling and other strategic fields of the army's air corps. Two large hoppers were filled with about 700 pounds of sand and then attached to the fuselage in which fashion that they could be released into a thick bank of clouds or fog. The purpose was to see whether or not fog could be broken up, dissipated, or made to change position. The results weren't astonishing, by any means, but on one occasion it was noted that when the entire tank of sand was discharged on an isolated cloud, about 4,000 feet in length and 2,000 feet wide, the cloud appeared to break up and vanish. Larger clouds were attacked, but it was found impossible to completely dissipate them. While, as yet, no practical results have been at-

GOEY DUCKS SLAIN AS BRAVE HUNTERS BATTLE ON ISLAND

Twelve Fine Specimens Bagged After Vigorous Encounters

Forty Members of Club Enjoy Annual Hunt on One of Gulf Islands

Goey ducks were on parade at the week-end. In three boats forty members of the "Goey-Duck Hunting Club" sailed from an undisclosed port for one of the Gulf Islands, where scouts had reported that the goey ducks had gathered in large numbers.

It was only a few minutes after the crowd of hunters had landed before the cry of "goey duck" went up from one of the explorers along the shore. With all their armament and raising war-whoops the crowd dashed to the scene of the prey. The inspector of credentials, officially passed on the specimen as a real "goey," and the battle with the quarry was on. With their armament half a dozen of the bravest fighters struggled with the duck for several minutes until they had it in a weak position. Then the chief matador, garbed in his green uniform, who had been holding himself in readiness, was called in for the kill. With utter disregard of danger he threw himself on the "goey," grabbed him by the tail, or something, and the real struggle was on. The animal put up a vigorous fight. The matador refused to let go, and when the "goey" started to get the better of the fight by burrowing in the sand, the second matador dashed in. Finally a third matador jumped into the fray. That was too much for the "goey," and he gave up the ghost. The cry of victory rang out across the island.

BITTER BATTLES

The battle raged on as "goey" after "goey" was discovered in its lair, and the brave volunteers of the crew were told off to bait them and work along until the experienced matadors were called in to finish them off.

After one of the particularly vicious struggles one of the party was left with very little but a red shirt. Movie picture cameras for the Pathe News and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer news reels ground away as the battles with the "goeys" went on.

When the hunters were exhausted, they gathered and rested in one of the shaded parts of the island. The spoils were brought in and it was found that twelve "goeys" had been slain.

During the explorations of the Victoria party two aborigines on this isolated Gulf Island were discovered feasting on melons, and in their quaint native dress. The party learned they were Chief Charlie and his Prince David, and the visitors got photographs of them beside their island totem pole.

THE PARTING KISS

One of the most touching incidents of the day was when a young goey duckling slipped up and cuddled down with the director of ceremonies, when he dozed off for an afternoon's nap. A snapshot of the little fellow lying there with the matador who had been slaying his companions earlier in the day was taken.

What To Do With Milk That Sours

By SISTER MARY

There is almost certain to be sour milk on hand during the hot weather. The first thing that comes to mind is cottage cheese, but when there's only one cup or less and there's baking to do the most satisfactory way to save the milk is to use it in cakes or cookies.

Although many women hesitate to use sour milk and soda in baking, it is a simple thing to substitute sour milk for sweet milk in any recipe.

The easiest rule to follow is to use one-half teaspoon of soda for one cup of sour milk and omit one teaspoon of cream of tartar or two teaspoons of baking powder from the recipe.

Baking soda by itself is not to be recommended as a leaven, although it often is used alone in making ginger bread and spice cake. When heated baking soda generates carbon dioxide, which is the great leavening agent in flour mixtures, but the residue left after the decomposition of the soda discolors the mixture and makes the disagreeable taste and smell. However, when spices are used they disguise the color and odor.

NOTE ACIDITY OF MILK

The acidity of the milk also enters into the problem. Milk which has just "turned" will need a small amount of soda to neutralize it and enough baking powder will be needed to leaven the mixture. An eighth to a quarter teaspoon of soda to one cup of slightly soured milk and the usual amount of baking powder called for in the recipe should be used.

The best way to use soda in a recipe is to dissolve it in a little cold water and immediately beat it into the mixture. A small amount of gas may be lost by this method, but there is no danger of the tiny yellow spots so often noticed when soda is added to the dry ingredients.

Sour milk drop cakes are worth keeping in hand.

DROP CAKES

Two eggs, one cup sugar, six tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon soda, two teaspoons water, one-half cup sour milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup chopped nut meats.

Beat yolks of eggs until thick and beat in sugar and melted butter. Add sour milk and beat hard. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add with nuts to mixture. Add soda dissolved in water and vanilla. Beat hard and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Drop from tip of spoon on to an oiled and floured sheet and bake twelve minutes in a moderately hot oven, 375 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

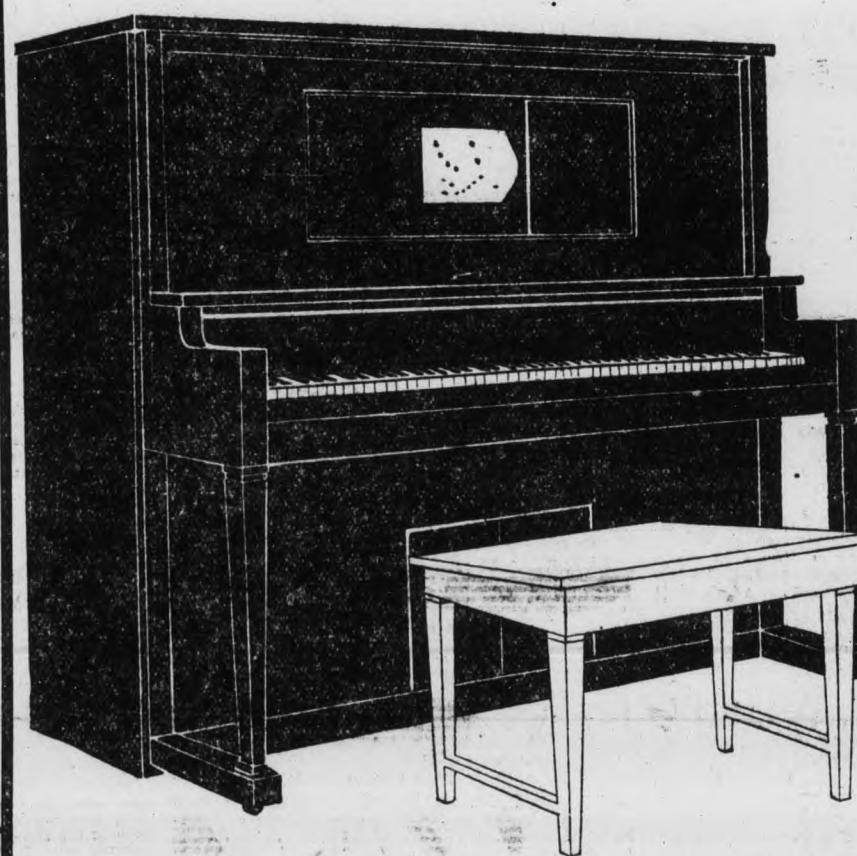

In fact, it is expected that in time they will reveal valuable information about the fundamental structure of fog and clouds.

Egypt! Land of the Pharaohs

HERE in the valley of the Nile stand the pyramids, noble monuments of that early civilization which, with pomp and ceremony, committed its dead to the care of the great god Osiris. The Egyptian always made ample provision for the proper burial of himself and his dependents.

It is also inscribed in certain tombs of Egyptian kings that, among their good deeds, they gave protection to those in need. Voluntary, instead of organized protection it was, but the psychological and social basis was the same.

To-day, as enduring as the pyramids, stands our great humane institution—modern life insurance as provided through the policies of The Dominion Life Assurance Company. Conspicuous in its forty years of service is the Company's outstanding reputation for paying large profits to policyholders.

It has been discovered that in Egypt, 4,500 years ago, Seneferu, Son of Hera, a man without rank or wealth, was a member of a Guild of Necropolis stone masons and that he regularly paid fees to make provision for the burial of his grandmother and three aunts. They are referred to as

THESE
We know what great importance the Egyptians attached to their tombs and burial. Diodorus says, "They call their houses hostels, on account of the short time during which they inhabit them, but their tombs they call eternal dwelling-places."

ants and flanked by half a dozen mounted constables. Save for a few rows of gilt chairs in the presbytery, the furnishings of the Abbey were hardly different from those which may be seen on almost any Sunday of the year. The choir members were disposed on the screen around the organ console so their usual places might be available for official personages. In an inconspicuous aisle was the famous band of the Grenadier Guards, which, under the direction of Capt. G. J. Miller, made a notable contribution to the music.

MANY REPRESENTATIVES

There was a real desire to render as many seats in the Abbey as possible available for the people at large. It was imperative, however, that a considerable portion be reserved for those attending in a representative capacity. So soon after daybreak a line began to form of men and women who had traveled mostly from the remote suburbs. When the west door was opened at 9.30 they were admitted in little batches, but all accommodations were taken in a few minutes.

There was very little color in the dress of either the men or women. So far as the men were concerned it was a morning dress affair, and most of the women were soberly garbed, perhaps because the weather was not too promising. The chief exception was a little group of people from India.

MANY AT OTHER CHURCHES

The waiting congregation, however, had little to distract its attention, for following His Majesty's express wish most well known persons, except those holding official positions, attended their usual place of worship. The Government of Great Britain was represented by Premier Ramsay MacDonald, Lord Thomson, Lord Passfield and Capt. Wedgwood Benn, who awaited the arrival of the King and Queen at the west door. The band played an elaborate programme while the congregation assembled. When the music ceased for a space, the bells could be heard pealing.

PROCESSION THROUGH NAVE

Finally inside the Abbey was heard the cheering as the King and Queen appeared. They were received at the west door by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Dean of Westminster. Very Rev. W. F. Norris, A processional immediately formed, led by the Abbot canon vested like the Archbishop and Dean in rich robes, and preceded by the great gold cross of the Abbey. The procession included Lord Salisbury, Hugh Steward of Westminster, and Lord Mair-Macdonald. The King was in morning dress, with a white flower in his lapel. The Queen wore a toque hat with a dress of the palest shade of lavender. Immediately following their Majesties walked the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, Prince George, Princess Mary and Lord Lascelles, Princess Victoria and other members of the Royal family. The imposing procession moved slowly toward the presbytery while the choir sang verses written by the late Sir Cecil Spring-Rice. The King, the Queen on his left, the Prince of Wales on his right and the other members of the royal family around them, took their seats on the south side of the presbytery.

HYMN SUNG

The hymn, "All People That on Earth do dwell," was sung to the familiar and robust music. There was a pause, and then a thunderous roll of the drums. The dean of the Abbey then cried: "God save the King. God save this realm. God give us thankful hearts."

A stirring peal of trumpets followed, after which the organ and bands led the congregation in the first verse of the National Anthem. A series of sentences of thankfulness, chiefly from the Psalms, followed. The Archbishop then led the people, now on their knees, in the Lord's Prayer and several of the collects. "We thank Thee that Thou hast given our King the joy and comfort of knowing that he possesses the hearts of his people; and we pray that the members of his family in thought and prayer made by folk of many races and in many lands may give the promise of a time when all the peoples of the world share their joys and sorrows as members of one family in Thee. Who art the Father of all. These and other sentences were said. Then the congregation joined in the general thanksgiving, the words of which were doubtless familiar to even the least devout.

LEFT BY WEST DOOR

The royal family, first making obeisance to the Holy Table, then departed.

At the west door Their Majesties, with the Prince and other members of the Royal Family, paused for a while for a group photograph with such of their acquaintances as were there. Others high in the service of this and other states came out and greeted one another on the lawns surrounding the Abbey.

The Queen was all smiles. So, too, was His Majesty, but there was no doubt that he still bore traces of what he had been called upon to endure.

MESSAGE FROM KING

London, July 8.—King George, through his secretary, Lord Stanfordham, last night sent the following message to the Archbishop of Canterbury:

"The King returned from Westminster with feelings of thankfulness and satisfaction that his earnest desire to join with his people in an act of thanksgiving had been accomplished. To the Archbishop of Canterbury, to the Dean and chapter of Westminster and to all who were responsible for compiling and carrying out the special service His Majesty desires to express his heartfelt gratitude. The whole ceremony displayed reverence, dignity and a beauty of holiness which with the feeling of the glorious Abbey seemed to complete that sacrifice of thanksgiving offered by the King and his people for all the benefits received at the hand of God."

PLANE TO-DAY ON WAY FROM MAINE TO ROME

The Pathfinder, a Bellanca monoplane powered with a Wright motor, bears the insignia "NX-3789" on the tail and on the lower side of the left wing. The fuselage is of light green with the name "Pathfinder" on both sides.

TO DROP WREATH

When they left the fliers planned to drop a wreath 100 miles out at sea in memory of Philip Payne and the crew of the plane Old Glory, who were lost two years ago after a take-off here. Yancey, who holds a master mariner's license, and his host, a navigator for twenty-two years, said he had been asked by Dr. James H. Kimball, New York weather expert, to make readings and check conditions thoroughly.

THIRD ATTEMPT

To-day was the third time in six weeks Williams and Yancey had essayed a take-off. The other two attempts, both unsuccessful, were made in the Green Flash, a sister plane of the Pathfinder.

On May 29, one of the wheels of the Green Flash crumpled soon after the run down the beach had started. The rest of the plane was not damaged and another try was made on June 13. On that occasion, one wheel struck soft sand and pulled the plane into a ground loop, the machine being smashed almost beyond repair.

On these attempts the fliers had company—the young Frenchmen, who reached Spain in the monoplane Yellow Bird after starting for Paris. To-day they had the beach to themselves.

COURSE CHOSEN

The fliers planned to strike almost due east to the tip of Cape Sable, N.S. There they hoped to head east-south-east to the junction of steamship lines about 1,000 miles from Old Orchard.

They expected then to follow the forty-first parallel of latitude, passing 100 miles north of the Azores and reaching the mainland at Cape Ortegal, the northern tip of Spain. They then planned to cross to Bayonne, France, and head across the Mediterranean, passing over the island of Corsica.

FOGGY WEATHER

Halifax, July 8.—Dense fog at Cape Sable made it improbable the plane Pathfinder, flying from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome, would be seen over Nova Scotia unless it took a more northerly course. Government wireless stations at Yarmouth and other points were on the alert for any word regarding the plane.

FLYING NORMALLY

Gloucester, Mass., July 8.—Lieut. L. M. Melka, pilot of the United States coastguard plane accompanying the Old Orchard-to-Rome plane Pathfinder, reported to the coastguard base here at 9.50 a.m. eastern daylight time, that he had last seen the plane about seventy miles off the Portland Lighthouse and that it was going "fine." The coastguard plane then turned back.

ROME LEARNS

Rome, July 8.—News of the hop-off of the plane Pathfinder for Rome reached the Eternal City in the midst of the summer-time lunch hour to-day and found few officials at their offices to receive it. Since it is the beginning of the vacation season many mercy than ever had been recorded in history. The people of the Empire were observing the occasion as the result of a personal call from King George, and the King's invitation was an indication that the Empire has a Christian King. This gesture by His Majesty should lead the peoples of the Empire to recognize the call of the King of Kings, to realize the abundance of His mercies, Dr. Sippell pointed out.

ST. ANDREW'S

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Rev. H. P. S. Luttrell led the congregation in the prayers used at Westminster Abbey and the choir rendered, as an anthem, the hymn "Praise My Soul," used in the London service. The minister's address was based on the recovery of King Hezekiah, drawing analogies and contrasts between the two historic events. The service closed with the National Anthem, with an added special verse.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

St. John's Church used the Westminster Abbey service, the large congregation including a delegation of more than 200 members of the Orange Order. Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick declared the thanksgiving to be a mark in the history of the British throne, the heart of the constitution of the Empire, the greatness of which circled around the throne.

Pointing out that the story of the British throne was a narrative of the struggle for civil and religious liberty, Rev. Mr. Chadwick cited the invitation to William of Orange to become the champion of that issue and referred to formation of the Orange Order at that time. He closed with an appeal for renewal of vows of loyalty to King George and also to the King of Kings.

ST. ANDREW'S CATHEDRAL

A capacity congregation attended the special thanksgiving service held at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral at 11 o'clock. Rev. Father Evans pointed out that temporal authority came from God, and the Empire was blessed in having a good Christian in King George, who incarnated the authority of God.

Respect and obedience towards authority was required by the Scriptures and this mental attitude of the people was not to be limited to the King. By virtue of authority delegated by His Majesty to subordinate, lesser magistrates and even police officers were entitled to respect and support in the carrying out of their duties.

Father Evans touched also upon the great development of Christian influence in legislation in recent years, and the practical application of the teachings of Christ now attained in social legislation.

FIRST UNITED

At First United Church Rev. J. K. Unsworth, D.D., led a large morning congregation in a notable thanksgiving service. In his address Dr. Unsworth pointed out that the King's illness had linked him closely with the troubles of average humanity. His Majesty's public thanksgiving for restoration to health was no conventional act, being the recognition by a true Christian of wonderful blessings.

It meant much to the Empire that its head should be a devoted Christian and the message of the King, inviting his people to join with him in thanksgiving, spoke in unwritten lines of the universal brotherhood of humanity in trouble.

FIRST BAPTIST

The morning service at the First Baptist Church was opened with the Doxology and the National Anthem. Among the hymns sung was "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and the prayer of thanksgiving used at Westminster Abbey was followed.

RURAL SERVICE

Rev. Francis Mortimer preached an appropriate sermon on thanksgiving at St. Matthew's Church, Langford. Special prayers were used. The National Anthem was sung. Miss Ada Simpson presided at the organ.

Ottawa, July 8.—Canada joined with the rest of the Empire yesterday in offering up grateful thanks for the recovery of King George. Throughout the country special services were held in the churches and prayers were offered.

Word of His Majesty's complete recovery came with a feeling of grateful relief to the people and yesterday a note of joyousness was present on the occasion set apart by royal proclamation for thanksgiving. The prayers were not the mere dutiful response of loyal people but revealed in their earnestness something of the feeling that is common throughout the Empire toward its head. Special tributes were paid to the courage of Queen Mary in her long anxious vigil. Added solemnity was given services in Anglican churches of Canada by their following the same order of service as that in Westminster Abbey, held a few hours before.

Premier King came to Ottawa from his summer home at Kingsmere to attend the service in St. Andrew's Church. All Cabinet Ministers in the city, as well as men and women prominent in Canada's national and commercial life, were present at thanksgiving services.

A LOSS TO THE COMMUNITY

THE SPIRITUAL LIFE OF THIS COMMUNITY will be the poorer by the departure from the city of Rt. Rev. Thomas O'Donnell, who has presided over the Catholic diocese here for the last five years, and Rev. J. P. Westman, who has just brought to a close his ministry, for the second time in his long and honored career in the pulpit, at the Centennial United Church. Bishop O'Donnell will go to Halifax to assume the position of Coadjutor Bishop of that diocese, while the Rev. Mr. Westman will resume his ministerial duties in the city of Vancouver.

During the period of his service here Bishop O'Donnell made many fast friends among the people generally, while under his able direction his church flourished. That he will be just as successful in his new field is the confident expectation of his numerous admirers.

Rev. Mr. Westman first came to Victoria nearly a quarter of a century ago and at once endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact. Although his term did not exceed three years at that time, his contribution to the religious life of this city was marked and valuable. When he returned here five years ago, therefore, it was something in the nature of a homecoming. He will take with him to Vancouver the good wishes of a host of friends.

EUROPEAN STABILITY AND CANADIAN FOREIGN TRADE

AS AN INDICATION OF THE INFLUENCE of the re-establishment of European stability upon conditions in Canada, it is interesting to examine the volume and value of the trade of Canada with Europe before the war, during the post-war depression, and at the present time.

Even during the depression Canadian exports to Europe were approximately 200 per cent. greater in volume than before the war, and for the fiscal year ending March 30, 1929, the total value of Canada's exports direct to Continental Europe amounted to $169,000,000, as compared with $12,000,000 in 1913. By volume, this increase amounts to about 800 per cent., if we assume that prices of exports are approximately fifty per cent. higher than before the war. Canadian imports from Europe, on the other hand, dropped about forty-five per cent. below the 1913 level during the depression, and are now 17.5 per cent. greater than the pre-war volume.

In order to make this study complete it was also necessary to examine Canadian exports to Great Britain over the same period, since it was not impossible that a larger proportion of goods was exported to Europe by way of Great Britain before the war. Goods that are sent to Great Britain and then re-exported to the Continent are reported as being exported to Great Britain. The value of exports to Great Britain and the Irish Free State for the fiscal year ending March 30, 1929, amounted to $434,000,000, compared with $170,000,000 in 1913. The increase amounts to about sixty-five per cent. by volume. While this analysis does not throw much light on the relative proportion of Canadian products which move to the Continent via British ports, yet it does make clear the fact that, though Great Britain remains the greatest export market for Canadian goods, the rate of increase in European demand for Canadian products is much more rapid than that of Great Britain.

An interesting sidelight on the currents of international trade is secured by the analysis of the volume of Canadian imports from Great Britain. During the fiscal year ending March 30, 1929, the value of these imports amounted to $194,000,000, as compared with $138,000,000 before the war. By making the same calculations to determine volume as were made in the statements given below, it is probable that the volume of imports from Great Britain is actually about five per cent. below the level of 1913.

THE CASE OF MR. STRACHAN

MANY PEOPLE WILL RESENT THE action of the Provincial Government in dispensing with the services of Mr. D. W. Strachan, who has filled the post of superintendent of the farm at Tranquille Sanatorium for fifteen years. Feeling is running high in the Kamloops district over the matter, and the agricultural editor of The Vancouver Daily Province makes it clear that Mr. Strachan has not been fairly treated. This writer says:

General regret is felt throughout the district that David W. Strachan is being superseded as superintendent of the Tranquille sanatorium farm, of which he has been the head for the last fifteen years and which, under his management, has developed into one of the show places of the Province. The chief function of the Tranquille farm is, of course, to supply high quality milk, which forms one of the principal articles of diet of many of the patients in the sanatorium, and with this object in view Mr. Strachan has built up a Holstein herd that ranks among the best in Canada.

When he assumed charge fifteen years ago the dairy herd consisted of nondescript, low-producing grades of practically every breed. His first step was to purchase six head of purebred females from Colony farm, and from this foundation stock, with a few outside purchases, the present herd of over 100 head has been built up. Many of the herd have made notable records in the R.O.P., while the average production has been raised from 6,000 pounds of milk in the second year of his management to 16,000 pounds per cow per year.

During the first nine years of his management, with the exception of one year when there was a small loss, the farm was conducted at a profit which, according to official statements of chartered accountants, amounted to from $700 to as high as $4,663 in a year, in addition to the payment of mortgage interest amounting to $1,200 to $1,400 yearly.

The general feeling here is that Mr. Strachan has not been given due credit for his work. As a citizen of the district, Mr. Strachan has ever been an active community worker. He has taken a prominent part in bringing the Kamloops bull sale to its present satisfactory status and the successful revival of the Kamloops fall fair was largely due to his assistance. By surrounding farmers he will be greatly missed, as his advice was often sought and freely given in solving agricultural problems.

Commenting on the Vancouver writer's observations, The Kamloops Sentinel, whose attitude towards politics is staunchly independent, has the following to say in part:

It should be remembered that Mr. Strachan formed his policy largely on the responsibility and encouragement of the late Government. With the change of administration, perhaps naturally the manner in which the farm was run came under closer scrutiny. It is difficult for us at this range to form a proper estimate as to Mr. Strachan's work as a whole. That of the Province's agricultural editor, however, knowing as he did Mr. Strachan for a great number of years, is well worth while, and he certainly seems to be sympathetic towards that official's work and accomplishments. "The general feeling in Kamloops," says this editor, "is that Mr. Strachan has not been given due credit for his work." That is true enough, and knowing Mr. Strachan as we do, his great services to the farm and agriculture generally in this district and Province, his zeal in community effort, his unfailing courtesy, his very right attitude to the press and a thousand endeavors they were entitled to, all these attributes encourage us to say that such an official might have been given a greater share of courtesy from the Government when the time came for the provincial secretary to end his services.

Mr. Strachan filled a most difficult post, he would have been a superman had he had no enemies. But had he done nothing else than raise the Holstein herd he had at Tranquille, he would have rendered a huge service to the Province.

These references to Mr. Strachan are obviously moderate in tone; but they convey the idea that when the Government paid him a month's salary and told him to get out, it not only deprived the Province of an able official, but also subjected him to treatment which the average businessman would hesitate to extend to anybody in his employ.

GROWING CITIES

WHEN HON. R. B. BENNETT addressed an audience at Windsor recently he made much of the prosperity of Detroit and, by the use of his typical tariff arguments, sought to imply that Canadian cities nearby were languishing because the economic policies of this country were not patterned on those of the neighboring republic.

Mr. Bennett did not require to go far afield to show what has been taking place on this side of the border since the King Government took office. In 1922 the population of Windsor was about 38,500; and the latest assessors' census gives it now more than 68,500. It has a population greater than that of Windsor, Walkerville, Sandwich and Ford combined in 1922. The following figures tell an interesting story:

	1922	1928
Windsor	38,530	68,569
Walkerville	7,303	10,671
Sandwich	4,922	10,655
Ford	5,113	15,105

Although the border cities may have been somewhat slow in getting started, but now they have started they seem to be going with a rush—and without a high tariff. The above figures certainly furnish an example of district growth which will take a lot of beating.

THINKING MORE OF CANADA NOW

DISPATCHES TO CANADIAN NEWS-papers from Canadian correspondents in Great Britain during the last two weeks indicate a very gratifying reaction to the King Government's negotiations in regard to inter-Empire trade. We are told that the attention of the investing public is being directed to the many opportunities for putting money to work profitably in this Dominion. It even is being suggested that there is likely to be a substantial falling off of the export of capital to the Argentine, for long an attractive field for British money.

This is all to the good. Predictions which our Canadian correspondents are making may come true. Evidently a new outlook is being developed. We know the British investor is missing big dividends by not investing more of his money in Canada; but the difficult part of the business is to convince him of the truth of this. Not even the displacement of British capital by United States capital in the Canadian investment field appears to have made the impression upon him one would expect. It may be, therefore, that the King Government's wise scheme for the further development of inter-Empire trade, so that the Empire will be less economically dependent upon foreign countries, will arouse him to a realization of what he is missing by not giving the Empire more of his financial backing.

FAMILY PARTIES
The Vancouver Province
Family parties in politics are no new thing in Great Britain. Mr. Strachan's public life is an early age there, and the prestige of a father is highly valuable to a son who is learning to walk politically. Later, it is possible, the father's attainments may be used as a measuring stick, and unless the son is able to measure up in all respects, he will be thought to have failed. But at first, to have a distinguished father is a decided advantage.

Family parties are rather a rarity in the Canadian Parliament. There is, of course, the historic case of Sir John A. Macdonald and his son, Sir Hugh, who were in the Parliament of 1891 together, and the other historic case of the two Tupperes. Sir Charles Hibbert was Solicitor-General in the short-lived ministry of his father in 1896. Until his death a few months ago, Hon. G. G. King sat in the Senate, while his son, Hon. J. H. King, was a member of the Mackenzie King Cabinet. There are two brothers in the present House of Commons, B. W. Fansher, who represents Lambton East, and W. R. Fansher of Last Mountain. Both are Progressives.

Loose Ends

New York millionaires show you how to become rich, too, if you leave your money in the banks long enough—the Carrs' letters illuminate a dark passage in the history of our time and reveal an amazing incompetence and tenderness and Spain hears of savings in the jungles of Canada.
By H. B. W.

IN THE Broadway National Bank and Trust Company, at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, New York, is an exhibition which will cheer many a worried householder around this time in the month when postmen are bowed down under the weight of monthly bills. This exhibition, designed to encourage thrift, contains the first bankbooks of 150 rich Americans, recording their early fortunes, their struggles to accumulate wealth.

AMONG them, for instance, is that of Douglas Fairbanks, dated as late as 1919, when the millionaire husband of Mary Pickford used to make deposits as small as $5. Towards the end of the book these deposits grow up to five figures to the left of the decimal point. John McEntee Bowman, of the great Bowman-Biltmore Hotels Corporation, informed the promoters of the bank book exhibition that his first deposit of less than $100 was in a bank which immediately proceeded to go into bankruptcy, paying him forty cents on the dollar. Mr. Knott, president of the State Title and Mortgage Company, a large concern, opened his first account in 1887 with a deposit of only $5. David A. Brown, chairman of the Broadway National Bank and Trust Company, showed his own first bank book which records a total of $50 when the account was opened in 1902.

THE exhibition thus teaches a very useful and highly moral lesson. If you leave your money in the bank long enough you, too, may retire a millionaire. The trouble is that if your account is no larger than most people's, you will have to wait for a couple of hundred years before you can stop working, and by that time you will have got so used to work you won't want to stop it.

IT IS not given to any generation to know much about itself. It is not given to the people of the eighteenth century, for instance, to understand the drama of the French Revolution, nor to sense the compelling interest that history would find in the execution of the sixteenth Louis and his still more famous consort, Marie Antoinette. A much more stirring drama, a much greater revolution, has thundered over the stage of our day, and we are almost blind to it. A hundred years hence they may know something about Russia's agony and the part that the last Romanoffs played in it. Meanwhile, like a flash of light in the darkness of the Russian night, comes the publication of the late Carr's letters to his wife during the fateful year from 1914 to 1917. Historians will find them extremely useful when they frame their final verdict concerning that pitiful figure, on whom a desperate people vented the wrath of many centuries.

IN THE first place, these letters show that the character of the Carrs was better than the world had supposed. But secondly they prove that his mind was smaller and weaker than anyone could have dreamed possible. His letters to his wife, tender, kindly, simple, are letters of a man less fitted to meet one of history's great crises than a valet, more ignorant of his people than a corporal in his demoralized army. Here is a sample of his daily correspondence with the Carrs during the war years when his empire was bleeding:

"My Beloved Sunny and Darling Wifey: We have finished breakfast, and have read your sweet, tender letter with moist eyes. This time I succeeded in keeping myself in hand at the moment of parting, but it was a hard struggle."

"What joy and consolation it would be if we could make the whole of this journey together! My love, I miss you terribly—more than I can express in words. Every day a courier will leave the town with papers. I shall try to write very often, as, to my amazement, I have come to the conclusion that I can write while the train is in motion."

"My hanging trapeze has proved very practical and useful. I sawing on many times and climbed up it before meals. It is really an excellent thing for the train, it stirs up the blood and the whole organism."

ON APRIL 8, 1915, he wrote from his army headquarters to his wife: "To-day's weather reminds me of that day in Coburg—how sad it is that we are not together! Nobody knew that it was the day of our betrothal—it is strange how soon people forget. 'That day in Coburg' happened in 1894, and when the Carrs was a prisoner, shortly before his death, he noted the same anniversary in his diary. Again, in a letter which briefly notes that one division of his army marched out 15,000 strong and returned with 980 men, he describes in detail the delight of his young heir in the pools of water in the quarters. When the revolution broke out, his letters became telegrams, and after he had abdicated the ancient throne of his father he telegraphed to his family this simple message: 'Hearty thanks. Mother kisses you and the children. She thinks much of Sunny. It is very cold. In the town it is apparently gutter. I hope the invalids are feeling better. I kiss you tenderly, Nicky.' Two days later he was arrested and remained a prisoner until his death; and what best became his life was his taking leave of it."

IT IS always interesting to see ourselves as others see us, and sometimes highly informative. If you were a citizen of old Madrid you would have learned many striking facts, the other day about your own Canada from El Liberal, one of the leading Spanish newspapers. "In that horrible Canada," said El Liberal, "already greatly denuded of its forests by axes of its army of workmen, and periodically devastated by glacial winds from the pole, a great tract of territory as large as ten Spain, great alarm was experienced, at the proposals of the British Government of the subject of emigration. The fear grew that one day a current of immigration would begin to flow into these desert lands, the very thought of which struck horror into the hearts of the bravest. 'Wolves and bears,' they said in effect, 'but men and hungry men—no.'"

"Does Last Longer"

"The voyageur, meeting in the twilight of the forests, one of its wild denizens, steps aside and allows it to pass unharmed in order to save his ammunition, but meeting with a fellow man among the trees he greets him with a rifle shot. It is only too clear that these men of the woods are no more than savages."

PROBABLY Spain's ideas of Canada are only equalled by Canadians' ideas of Spain. For most of us Spain means little more than bull fights and young gentlemen with guitars singing sentimental songs to young ladies in iron balconies, and there is a vague impression that the people of Spain confine themselves to these two interesting pursuits. Despite all our present-day methods of communication and enlightenment, it is still true that the world has known amazingly little of Spain, the other half is doing and doesn't seem to care much.

OUR DEBT TO SIR WILLIAM

TO THE Editor—It seems to the man in the street that a quite unnecessary fuss is being made about Sir William Jowett's defection, for in reality we owe him quite a debt of gratitude. For instance, controversy has raged for years as to whether Labor, as such, is fit to govern. Labor says emphatically "yes"; anti-Labor says emphatically "no." Even Mr. Snowden, who should know better, said a few weeks ago that "for every man of brains and ability the Liberals can produce, the Laborites can produce two." At the moment the latter steps into office to produce their "two to one." Not by a jugful. They beg a Liberal to accept the most important post, outside of the Chancellorship. And it has been assumed that they are a simple "childlike and bland" manner as to be positively mirth-provoking.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, JULY 8, 1904

Weather Forecast—Victoria and Vicinity—Winds chiefly westerly, fair and warm to-day and Saturday.

Wednesday's sessions of the Baptist convention held at Vancouver opened at 9 o'clock with devotional exercises, led by G. Morton Walker. Much interest was manifested in the various reports showing the progress of the church's work.

It is altogether likely that the work of renovating and improving the Victoria Theatre will be inaugurated within a few days.

Indians have been arriving from the West Coast in strong numbers during the last few days. They are bound for the Fraser River to engage in the fishing business there. They are traveling by way of canoe.

Again the ratepayers of Victoria did their part in the great plan which involves the conversion of an eye-sore into one of the most striking beauty spots on the Coast. Yesterday they polled, an almost unanimous vote in favor of the latest phase of the C.P.R. Hotel scheme.

Travel from the north continues very light. The Princess May, which arrived last evening, carried sixty-two passengers south, a complement that at this season other years would be easily doubled. All through this season the Klondike trade has been very small, and what is locally felt in this respect has been the experience of every city on the Coast catering to the business.

INTERRUPTED MEETING

TO THE Editor—The Colonist of June 22, tells me that an anti-vivisection society meeting in London was broken up by medical students numbering 200. This, as I know, was the annual meeting of the British Union for Abolition of Vivisection. The speakers were to be: Major Austin, M.R.C.S.; H. G. Chancellor, Roy Horniman, Horatio Matthews, M.D., M.B., Ch.B. and other persons. Dr. W. R. Hadwen was the chairman.

In previous years the same crude behavior has distinguished the students attending these meetings. G. E. Shaw, the Earl and Countess of Tankerville and others being prevented from speaking. There are two comments to be made in this connection:

(a) The young people will by means of cat-calls, whistles, rattles, buckets of water, evil smelling chemicals, live mice, endeavor to prevent meetings being held and impressing the public with the desirability of employing their services at a later date.

(b) It is a poor cause that is afraid of criticism and the attempt to prevent criticism is generally regarded as a sign of weakness.

When Dr. Hadwen was on this continent a few years ago, he was treated to a not too dissimilar exhibition of conduct. If these young students ever display a tithe of the knowledge and experience possessed by the president of the British Union for Abolition of Vivisection, they may yet be cause for self-congratulation, but at the present time the signs are not very favorable.

That a society of the highest standing cannot hold its annual meeting without such impertinent interference does not speak well for the manners and methods of the present-day youth; but at best, this is not an age of dignity. However, such conduct is bound to draw publicity to the cause, and will induce a number of level-headed and thoughtful persons to give it their consideration and support.

Dr. Hadwen has stated that as a medical student he was brought up to believe in the necessity for vivisection, but on reaching maturity years, and thinking for himself, he rejected it entirely. I append some indications of the work he has performed in his profession, and the degrees he holds: M.D., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., L.S.A. In his student days he held the Clarke Scholarship as the most distinguished student of the third year; he was first prizeman in pathology, operative surgery, pathology and forensic medicine; triple prizeman and double gold medalist in surgery and medicine; honorary life member and lecturer for St. John's Ambulance, justice of the peace, etc. He is an authority on premature burial and coroners' laws and was the first scientific man sent for to give evidence when a bill for the alteration of these laws was before the House of Commons; all his suggestions were incorporated in measures proposed in the final report. Dr. Hadwen was also invited to take over the authorship of the second edition of "Prevention of Premature Burial." The (Concluded on page 12)

BEACHES FULL AS JULY SUN WARMS TO ITS WORK

Perfect Day Brings Thousands to Beaches of Victoria and Vicinity

Tourists Enjoy Swimming While Children Have Time of Lives on Rafts

July at its best drew thousands of residents and tourists alike to the twelve miles of beaches in Victoria and its environs yesterday. The shoreline from Albert Head on the west to Cordova Bay on the east, and most bays and beaches on Saanich Arm were the scene of innumerable picnic parties, getting the most enjoyment out of a perfect day.

Bathers were out in numbers, reveling in the warm sunshine, with frequent recourse to the cooler temperature of the water. Water polo claimed many devotees, while at every beach children, newly released from school, made the most of the outing.

The numbers of local bathers was considerably swelled by visitors, who drove to the beaches in carloads, and found conditions much to their liking. Publicity officials have figured out that Victoria and its environs has in excess of twelve miles of choice beaches to offer to its people, and full advantage was taken of the asset yesterday. Particularly delighted with the scene were visitors from inland points and the prairies, some of whom were finding delight in their first sight of the ocean. The Pacific, as exemplified by the Straits of Juan de Fuca, was in a docile mood yesterday, presenting a fine spectacle with its wheeling gulls and passing ships.

MANY PICNICS

Facilities created by the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee at many public playgrounds were used to the limit, as parties gathered for picnics and a good time at the sea shore. Poul Bay, Oak Bay, Cadboro and Cordova beaches were crowded, while the many bays and inlets on Saanich Arm were also in great favor. Many who visited the Arm spent much of their time fishing, and good catches were reported in many instances.

UP-ISLAND FEARS VICTORIA MOVE TO CONTROL PARTY

Action on Proposal For Island Conservative Association Deferred Until October

Efforts of Victoria Conservatives to form a Vancouver Island Conservative Association to control party organization and the distribution of Provincial Government patronage independent of the Central Conservative Association of the Province, failed, temporarily, at least, on Saturday when representatives of the various island organizations gathered at Nanaimo.

F. C. Elliott of Victoria said that the aim of the organization would be to handle affairs "for the organization of the Island so that it would be the next election, be carried completely in the interest of the Conservative cause."

Reginald Hayward, M.P.P. of Victoria, denied that the southern end of the Island was trying to "put anything over" the northern end.

J. H. Beatty, I.P.P. of Victoria, admitted the difficulty arising from the fact that it might be thought that Victoria, with the largest representation, was trying to control the organization.

Senator Planta of Nanaimo declared it would be difficult to get such an organization to function, and emphasized the difficulties that arose through multiplicity of organizations.

Because of the fear of the Up-island constituencies that Victoria was trying to gain control of organization and patronage for the whole Island, it was decided to postpone action until October 5. During this time negotiations will be carried on and General A. D. McRae, Federal organizer, will be consulted.

There were nineteen representatives at the meeting from Victoria, five each from Esquimalt, Saanich, Nanaimo, Alberni and Comox and four from the Islands. Cowichan-Newcastle was unrepresented. John Bennett of Nanaimo presided and besides the speakers mentioned there were present C. H. Dickie, M.P.; Col. C. W. Peck, V.C.; M.P.P.; C. F. Davis, M.P.P.; Percy Rush-ton and Victor B. Harrison.

CRYSTAL POOL BOND ISSUE OUT

Victor W. Odum and Company today announced the public offering of $75,000 first mortgage sinking fund bond issue of Vancouver Crystal Pool Limited.

The Crystal Pool, which was owned Friday, is estimated to have cost in the neighborhood of $220,315, and has been financed by a $75,000 mortgage and issue of 10,000 five per cent preferred shares of $10 par value and 200,000 common shares of $1 par value. The original issue will carry as bonus 100 shares common stock with each bond.

The bonds are part of a first mortgage limited to $75,000. They have first lien on the assets of the company, which include the property at the corner of Beach Avenue and Nicola Street, consisting of 132 feet on Beach Avenue, extending on Nicola Street from the south of English Bay, including the riparian rights to a depth of approximately 500 feet, also the present building and any additions that may be subsequently built.

The earnings are estimated at $54,675, based on the results of similar undertakings elsewhere. Expenses are estimated to amount to $21,120, leaving $33,555 available for interest and retirement of the bonds.

The bonds are redeemable as a whole or in part on any interest payment date upon sixty days' notice at $103 and accrued interest during the first five years; $102 and accrued interest during the second five years, and $101 and accrued interest thereafter and until maturity.

The underwriters announce that preliminary offerings have been well received and anticipate an active demand for the balance of the bonds available.

Added Worries
"Look here," said the doctor, "you're run down. Go and cheer yourself up at one of those snappy musical comedies. It will take your mind off business."

"That's just what it won't do," muttered the patient. "I am an artificial leg manufacturer."

BRIDAL PARTY ESCORTED BY MOTOR POLICE

Miss Violet Elinor Eve and Mr. R. B. Mugford of Victoria
Police Force Wed Saturday

"Breadalbane" Windsor Road, Oak Bay, was the scene of a wedding on Saturday evening, when Rev. Dr. John Campbell united in marriage Violet Elinor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Eve, of 1467 Finlayson
Avenue, and Mr. Robert Burns Mug-ford, of Sooke, youngest son of Mr.
and Mrs. R. J. Mugford, of Sooke.

The groom was escorted by the Victoria police force. The bride was escorted by a number of motor policemen. In honor of the groom who is a member of the Victoria police force.

The home was decorated with blue and pink delphiniums and during the reception, the bride and groom stood under an arch of pink and white flowers.
Mrs. Alice Scott and Mrs. George Jones were responsible for the floral arrangements.

A two-tier wedding cake centred the supper-table. Following the reception at the home, Mr. and Mrs. Mugford left by motor for a trip up the island and on their return to Victoria will reside at the Broadway Apartments.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mugford, of Sooke;
his uncle, Mr. Jack Bradley, of Sooke, and Mr. and Mrs. George Jones, of Sooke.

Among the many wedding presents,
was a set of cutlery from the employees of David Spencer Limited, where the bride has been employed.

TRAINING SCHOOL AS ALMA MATER

Doctor Urges More Cultural Facilities For Nurses in Training

Montreal, July 8 (By the Canadian Press).—Every effort should be made to see that schools of training for nurses genuinely function as the nurses' alma mater, so that when she graduates she will not only be a trained nurse, but a better and more cultured woman, said Dr. E. S. Ryerson, secretary of the faculty of medicine, University of Toronto, addressing the nursing education section of the triennial congress of the International Council of Nurses to-day.

"The extra-curricular development of the nurse during the period she is in training is deserving of careful thought and consideration," Dr. Ryerson said.
"At this time she is not only learning to be a nurse but also is maturing as an individual member of society. A recent survey made by the Commission on Medical Education gave the replies of a large number of doctors with reasons for success in practice. The reason most commonly given was character, followed by personality and industry. It was interesting to find that knowledge ranked about fourth or fifth, indicating that individuality counts as much, or more, than success as the knowledge that one happens to possess. The inherent qualities that a nurse has as the result of her birth, upbringing and school education, develop still further during her period of training. Opportunities should be provided for this development to take place by supplying facilities for reading the literature of the day, for taking part in sports and for the enrichment of her life in its moral and spiritual aspects.

"Not infrequently, those training for nurses are away for the first time from their homes and parental control and supervision, so the school becomes their alma mater. Every effort should be made to see that it genuinely functions in this capacity so that when she graduates she will not only be a trained nurse, but a better and more cultured woman."

INTERNATIONAL NURSES' COUNCIL OPENED TO-DAY

Five Thousand Nurses From All Parts of the World in Convention at Montreal

Montreal, June 8.—Six thousand five hundred nurses from all parts of the world convened to-day for the sixth quadrennial congress of the International Council of Nurses, being held in Montreal
July 8-13.

Miss Nina D. Gage of New York City, president of the council, resounded those attending the opening meeting this afternoon at the International Council of Nurses is observing this year the twentieth anniversary of its organization.

"Nurses were the first professional group to recognize the need for working together on an international basis," she said. "There were many problems which needed to be solved in England, which were similar to the problems elsewhere. And after thirty years some of these problems still are of vital interest to world nursing."

Basic requirements in bedside nursing are the same the world over, Miss Gage declared. "State registration of nurses has been achieved in many countries, and in other countries which are not yet ready for government action, nurses are required to register through the national nurses' association. Protection of the public from the danger of unskilled nursing, and protection of the good name of our profession are attained by such legislation, which before long promises to be universal."

LONG WORKING HOURS

Among the problems common to nursing in all countries, the speaker cited hours of work in which, she said, in many countries were "much too long" to permit of the best care being given the patients because of the fatigue of the nurses.

The need for constant improvement in nursing education was emphasized by Miss Gage. "Prove to your communities," she urged, "that the better the preparation of the nurse, the better service she will give."

Miss Gage will preside this evening at an open meeting, at which addresses of welcome will be made by His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada; the Archbishop of Mon-real; the Premier of Quebec; the Mayor of Montreal; Dr. A. T. Bazin, president of the Canadian Medical Association, and Miss Mabel Heyser, president of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

FROM 42 COUNTRIES

Nurses from forty-two countries are attending the sessions of the International Council of Nurses, the very national group, the nurse associations of several countries, including Japan and Korea, are applying for membership during the present sessions, and if their standards in nursing education and practice are sufficiently high to meet the standards of the International association, they will be admitted this week.

Headquarters of the International Council of Nurses are in Geneva, Switzerland. Its officers include the president, Miss Gage, elected from China; first vice-president, Miss Clara D. Noyes, United States; second vice-president, Miss Jean I. Gunn, Toronto, Canada; secretary, Miss Christine Reimann, Germany.

Organized in 1889 by Mrs. Bedford Fenwick of England, who is unable to attend owing to ill-health, the three first organizations to form the International group were the nurses' associations of Great Britain, the United States and Germany. The official organization of the United States, the American Nurses' Association, is the largest constituent member, having an enrollment of more than 76,000 registered nurses.

Other nurse groups belonging to the International Council of Nurses are the official nurse organizations of Canada, Denmark, Finland, Holland, India,
New Zealand, Belgium, China, Italy,
Norway, South Africa, Bulgaria, Cuba,
France, Irish Free State and Poland.

MOTHERS And THEIR CHILDREN

THE PINK SILK NIGHTIE

One mother says:
Every method I had ever read or heard of, had been tried but without success to break my three-year-old daughter of wetting her bed. Finally I decided to try a new method, so set to work making the daintiest, prettiest pink nightie that could be imagined. Baby stood by and watched with glowing eyes while I sewed lovely lace and little pink bows on to the gown. When it was done I explained to her that she could wear it the very next night after she had a dry bed.
So the idea penetrated her little head that she must call mother at night, and the very first night was successful. So the next night on went the lovely gown. How she worked, winning the prize one night and losing it the next, until at last she had won it to be her's for keeps.

Crossed eyes, or squint, in children should receive immediate attention before this defect becomes established definitely. It can then be more easily corrected.
The system used by us is the latest and only scientific, rational

DIFFICULTY IN SWALLOWING INDI- CATES SLOW PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT

Sometimes children, up to the age of two and beyond, show a disinclination to chew and swallow thick foods.
Sometimes this is only evidenced when the foods are crumbly, such as toast, though some children refuse even such soft and easily swallowed foods as cereals. The baby may suck at the food in his mouth, instead of chewing it, until it goes down "wrong" and he coughs and chokes. He may hold it in his mouth for as long as half an hour and finally make an unsuccessful attempt to swallow it and then chokes and vomits it back. All this is distressing to the mother and she is almost certain to show her distress to the child.

If she is honest, she will admit that for many months past the age when the child should have been doing this himself, she has various excuses: "He eats better, he spills so much, he puts his fingers in the food, he throws it on the floor, etc." but the real thing is that the child remains passive while she stuffs food in his mouth. If he is reluctant to eat he spits it out.
If he refuses to chew and sucks at it,
he is very likely to inhale it.
His choking spell and his mother's obvious concern and fright set him against taking food in his mouth.
Which may go down in this unpleasant manner. Soon he refuses all thick foods on general principles.

This does not mean to me another said that his throat passage is too small. It does not mean that he is tongue-tied. It does mean that his physical development is delayed, and that he is nervous.

This type of baby may be very fat, but has a history of late walking and talking. Without doubt, he does not use his hands in any useful manner.
Dr. Cameron in his "The Nervous Child" says: "The fault is that the brain centres which control the movements of the hands and tongue have not been developed, because his activities in all directions have not been encouraged. It is much more trouble for a nurse to feed a child

"Broadway Babies" Is Title of Gay Film Showing This Week

Singing, Talking and Dancing Are Featured With Strong Plot

Alice White's singing, talking and dancing picture, "Broadway Babies," opened at the Capitol Theatre to-day for a three-day run. It is a story of gay Broadway that swings from theatres to night clubs and into the dens of the racketeers along the Main Stem while telling the story of three young vaudeville dancers who are fighting for recognition in the theatrical world of New York.

Large singing and dancing choruses were drilled for this gala picture, and a huge cast—one of the largest in recent months—is seen in support of the star.

"Broadway Babies" was directed by Mervyn LeRoy, and Charles Delaney plays opposite Miss White. Marion Byron and Sally Eilers are seen as the other two hoofers, and Fred Kohler, Louis Natheaux, Jocelyn Lee, Bodil Rosing, Tom Dugan and many others make up the supporting cast.

"WINGS" NOW AT COLISEUM IS AIR EPIC

With Strong Cast, Great Picture of War in the Clouds Returns to Victoria

Stage Play This Week Is Entitled "Tricked" With Change in Cast

All those who are interested in high courage, the bravery of unselfish and unyielding youth, the splendor of youthful sacrifice and beauty of human comradeship should see "Wings" at the Coliseum Theatre this week. It is a film setting forth the work of the young knights of the clouds in the war. But it is far more than a film. It is an epic of fearless young manhood, a paean of tribute to the airman whose wings are folded forever—as a beautiful phrase of dedication says—and it is also an amazing example of what can be achieved in the air. It is no combination of trickery and models, but a realistic visualization of real people riding the clouds and triumphing over the dawn.

The story is one of genuine drama, rich with the finest qualities that lie at the basis of the friendships of youth, and touched with infinite beauty of romance, which runs through it like a silver thread in a purple pall.

ON THE STAGE

Several changes have been made in the cast of the players this week, while the various members of the company take their holidays. This week Miss Ada Daniels, Forrest Taylor and Toby Leitch will not appear. Those on the stage will be Miss Leone Webster, Miss Esther Todd, Miss Pearl Galoway, Paul Wallace, Leon Cluff and Lorus Bageley. They will present a stage presentation entitled "Tricked."

MYSTERY OF JUNGLE IS PORTRAYED

"A Dangerous Woman" Is Film Feature at Dominion

Baclanova Has Leading Role in Story of Central Africa

The strange, impenetrable mystery that envelops the jungle region of Central East Africa is brought to the eyes and ears of the audience at the Dominion Theatre this week with the showing of "A Dangerous Woman," a picture of the high standard which Paramount has established in the audible field. The picture will show for three days.

Through the focus of this realistic jungle panorama, the audience beholds a rugged plot, incomparable acting and free-flowing comedy.

The locale of the picture is a British outpost set in the jungle country near a negro tribal village. Clive Brook plays the representative of his father-in-law, and Baclanova is his Russian wife. Neil Hamilton is cast in the role of Brook's brother who is ensnared by the romantic wiles of his comely sister-in-law, and Leslie Fenton is another Britisher who succumbs to the witchery of this man-hunting woman who has seemingly "gone native" under the influence of Africa's mystic jungle enchantment.

The sparkling comedy parts are provided by Snitz Edwards as a native negro chieftain and Clyde Cook as the faithful cockney servant to Brook. These men are old-time favorites in humorous pretending.

"A Dangerous Woman" has an emotionally tumultuous climax which reaches through to the eyes and ears of the audience like a bull elephant through the "bush."

The plot is based on the story by Margery H. Lawrence which appeared in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Rowland V. Lee directed the picture.

STORY BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER AT PLAYHOUSE

"The Harvester," By Well-known Author, Opens For Week's Run

The current attraction at the Playhouse Theatre is one of the finest pieces of movie material that has been to that theatre of late. "The Harvester" is a picture version of the famous novel by Gene Stratton-Porter, and is directed by her son-in-law, J. Meehan.

"The film is faithful throughout to the novel version and Director Meehan and his photographer, Allen Siegler, have also managed to infuse most of the glories of the Limerlost into the film. The exteriors were all taken on the Indiana estate of Mrs. Porter, and are the same as the actual scenes of the story.

Strong Squads Coming For N.P.A.A.O. Regatta

ANNUAL ROWING CLASSIC OF NORTHWEST TO BRING MANY OARSMEN TO CITY

Portland and Vancouver Contingents for Contests Over Esquimalt Course Will Be Composed of Several Stars; Dan Moses and Jack Crane to Carry Local Colors in Singles Events; Del Desbrisay and Eddie Snead Captain Outside Squads.

Led by Del Desbrisay and Eddie Snead, strong contingents of oarsmen will come to Victoria from Portland and Vancouver respectively to meet J.B.A.A. and Brentwood crews in the N.P.A.A.O. regatta on the Esquimalt course July 19 and 20.

Singles, doubles and fours boats will be filled with veteran oarsmen from the two outside clubs and plenty of thrilling races are promised when they meet the fast local rowers in both senior and junior races.

Desbrisay, winner of the senior sculls at the last five N.P.A.A.O. meets, will again represent Portland in this division, while Eddie Snead, captain of the Vancouver club, will race in the lightweight singles.

MOSES IN SENIOR

In both these divisions the well-known visitors will have to stand up against stiff opposition from the local club. Dan Moses, who has for several years been counted one of the fastest men in the city, will carry the J.B.A.A. colors in the senior event, and Jack Crane will row in the 140-pound class. Both men have been working out steadily and are counted strong contenders for first honors in the two events.

While Portland and Vancouver shells will carry the same men as they did in last year's senior fours, they will find plenty of fight in the local junior fours from the J.B.A.A. and Brentwood.

Although the Island contenders are considerably lighter than their more experienced opponents, they have shown plenty of speed over the course and will not go down without a stubborn fight in the major event of the regatta. Yesterday the local boys won over the course in the 140-pound shell, one of the best boats on the Pacific Coast, and completed the distance in exceptionally good time.

In this race Vancouver will be represented by Andy Mason-Rooke, Vernon Furber, Frank Smith and Art Bergman, the men who pulled the winning shell at the regatta in 1928.

McDonald, Al Hammond, John Semmelroth and Harry Humphrey will hold down benches in the Portland boat for the same race, while Johnny Tromald, Del Desbrisay, Whitaker, and G. Orlo Kendall will come over as spares.

Brentwood's junior four, composed of F. W. Matthews, B. W. Pittfield, C. F. Fogg and J. E. Nickson, will also enter the senior race.

Victoria will be represented by the junior four making the best showing in their race on Friday.

TO RACE FOR PLACE

In order to determine which crew will enter the senior, Askey, Norris, Dunn and Smith will row for their hardest against Bert Willis, Brian Hunning, Al Wright and Art Ditchburn in the junior contest. Al reached, the latter team is expected to qualify for the big race.

Competition promises to be unusually keen in the senior doubles. In this event Dan Moses and John Ditchburn will carry Victoria's colors against Desbrisay and Orlo Kendall of Portland, and Eddie and Dawson Gordon of Vancouver. The latter club will also enter George Kingsley and Hugh Fletcher in the event, and will have as reserves Clyde Donaldson and Eddie Snead.

PRATT IN SINGLES

Although the Bays are undecided upon an entry in the junior singles, C. E. Pratt of Brentwood will attempt to uphold the honor of the Island in the event against Noel DeMille and Norm Smith of Vancouver and G. Orlo Kendall and Al Hammond of Portland. Pratt has been rowing for several years and should stand a good chance of annexing first place in the race.

Jack Miller and Art Heron of the J.B.A.A., Orlo Kendall and Harry Humphrey, and Al Hammond and John Semmelroth of Portland will compete against Mickey Draig and Teddy Boyle of Vancouver in the junior doubles. To insure a strong entry in this race, the Terminal City has provided for four spares, Ed. Skelly and Deeny Gore and Art Bergman and Jack Hall.

As in the majority of races, Vancouver has provided two spares for the lightweight doubles in case Eddie Snead cannot row. In case of an accident to their captain, either Clive McConnon or Babs Jagard will row in this division against Jack Crane, and Hugh McConnon and Charlie Gray of Vancouver.

Vancouver entries for the junior fours include Ken Whitaker, Bruce Forbes, a former local boy, Bert Dillabough and Peter Bird and Tom Cameron, Frank Coleman, Jack Coleman and Fraser Allardice.

The local boys will have a strong Vancouver squad to worry about in the lightweight fours. The visiting boat will be manned by Dave Pugh, Arnold Farhurst, Fred Maywood and Don Allen, while the spare crew will be composed of Rick Craig, Eddie Snead, Charlie Gray, Clive McConnon and Babs Jagard.

However, the J.B.A.A. looks upon its 140-pounders as one of its strongest bets for first places, and with Crane, McConnon, Darbyshire and Scott in the shell should be able to offer plenty of competition to either visiting crew.

With such an imposing entry list, all races are expected to be keenly contested and should furnish an abundance of thrills for those who attend the regatta on Friday and Saturday of next week.

Los Angeles, July 8.—The Pacific Coast tennis doubles championship was won yesterday by Phil Neer and James Davies, former Stanford University court stars. They defeated Cliff Herd and Alan Herrington, Los Angeles amateurs, 6-3, 7-5, 9-11, 6-4.

Lord Burghley Wins and Loses Hurdle Events

Stamford Bridge, Eng., July 8.—J. Facelli of Italy defeated Lord Burghley by a yard and a half in the 410-yard hurdle race in the final day of the British amateur athletic championship meeting here Saturday. Facelli's time was 33 2-5 seconds. Lord Burghley, who is Olympic hurdles champion at 400 metres, made up for this by capturing the 120-yard hurdles in 15 2-5 seconds.

Five C's and Days Winners; Parsons Hurt

Albions and Nights Defeated; Lethaby's Team Draws With Cowichan

Parsons of Albions Taken From Field With Broken Collarbone Through Fall

Overcoming the mark of 125 made by the Albions during their innings, Five C's won the match played between the two teams at Beacon Hill on Saturday by three runs after seven wickets had been taken. The game was marred by a painful accident to E. Parsons of the Albions, who fell while running and was taken from the field with a broken collarbone.

W. E. Enoch was the highest scorer of the match, making forty-seven, not out, while C. M. Gault of the churchmen came second with thirty-three.

Eric Quinton made the best average in bowling, taking five wickets for twenty-nine runs.

In the match between the Days and Nights at Cranmore Road, the Nights ran up a total of sixty-one for only four wickets. However, Leven's bowling brought the Nights' bats down in quick order and retired the team for ninety-eight. Days defeated their opponents by 100 runs.

Lethaby's eleven ran up a seventy-six-run lead over Cowichan in the other game of the day, but at 6 o'clock the match was declared a draw, with Lethaby a record one and the grade of tennis was better than ever.

Hocking began serving in his game with Cunningham and won the first game with a mixture of drives. The following two games went the way of the first and Cunningham began to realize his opponent was at his best.

Hocking had the final of the men's singles on two other occasions and proved a frost and lost without putting up a fight. Cunningham secured his first game when he won the fourth and then took the next two to even the count. Hocking began to force matters a bit more and won the seventh game of his service. Cunningham came right back and took the next two games to obtain a 5-4 lead.

At this point he faltered momentarily and Hocking, seizing the advantage, won the match, which Cunningham did only to overhit, and Hocking ended the match with three straight games, the final score being 7-5.

On commencement of the second set Hocking mixed his shots to prevent Cunningham from using his devastating forehand, and was able to cope with the delayed driving. Getting an even break from the back court, Hocking awaited the opportunity for an opening and used a forcing shot to gain the net position, where he secured the point from volleys.

After obtaining the lead, Hocking slackened off, and nearly paid dearly for this error, as Cunningham made several passing shots and was hitting the net as he strove to keep pace. However, the score reached 4-4 and then Hocking ran out the set.

The third set was the most exciting of the three and was in doubt until the last point was played. Hocking established a lead of 4-2 and actually had Cunningham forty love on his service, but was passed beautifully at the net as he strove to keep pace. However, the score reached 4-4 and then Hocking ran out the set.

WRIGHT TO TRY AGAIN FOR DIAMOND SCULLS; HELD HIS FINAL SPRINT TOO LONG

Henley on Thames, Eng., July 8 (Canadian Press Cable)—The historic Diamond Sculls, emblematic of the world's amateur single sculls championship, passed from Canada to Holland Saturday, when L. Gunther defeated Joe Wright Jr., of Toronto, the holder, Wright lost by an error of judgment, starting his final burst too late to overhaul the Dutchman. Gunther won by a yard in eight minutes and 42 seconds.

"It was a great race," the Canadian said afterward. He confirmed the opinion of those who saw his failure when he said: "I held my last stroke too long, and I intended to come over next year and try to win the Diamond Sculls for Canada again."

Gunther, after lighting a cigar when the race was over, said: "I knew I was going to be lucky to-day when I sat in my bath this morning. I know I sculled as well as I could and Wright nearly had me at the end. I hope to come over again next year, and will if I am not married."

It was not Wright's sculling that failed him. He rowed magnificently all through, even when he was a length behind at one stage, apparently being confident of success.

The new holder of the famous trophy deserved his victory, without the slightest doubt. He is a fit successor to the Canadian, for Gunther is a sculler whose style is perfect, judged from the British standpoint.

HOCKING AND MISS LEEMING ARE CLAY COURT CHAMPS

Ross "Bud" Hocking and Miss Marjorie Leeming are the new clay court tennis champions of Victoria. In keenly-contested finals played at the Kingston Street courts Saturday afternoon the new titleholders defeated Gerald Cunningham and Marjorie MacFarlan.

Hocking defeated Gerald Cunningham by scores of 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 to take the men's title, while Miss Leeming was forced to three sets, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. In her match with Miss Marjorie MacFarlan, the New Zealand champion, the final score being 7-5.

The finals brought to a close the most successful tournament that the club has ever promoted. The entry list was a record one and the grade of tennis was better than ever.

BREAKS TWO MILE RECORD AT HAMILTON

New Canadian Mark Is Set By J. M. Humphrey of Oxford in Dual Meet

Hamilton, Ont., July 8.—Bringing unexpected strength into play in the 440-yard and two-mile runs, the Oxford-Cambridge track and field team defeated the Hamilton Olympic Club by seven points to five in their dual meet here Saturday afternoon.

Each point represented an event run and won. Besides the 440 and two-mile events, the Britons captured the 120 and 220-yard hurdles, the shot put, the high jump and the broad jump. Their Canadian opponents won the 100 and 220-yard dashes, the half mile and runs and the pole vault.

Phil Edwards, who holds the United States national quarter and one-half mile championship, shared the two individual honors of the meet, with Johnny Fitzpatrick of Hamilton and J. M. Humphrey of Oxford, who lowered a Canadian record of more than twenty years standing when he showed the way home in the two-mile event in 9:33 2-5.

Racing under the Hamilton Olympic Club colors, the Dusky Edwards won the mile and half-mile with comparative ease.

Fitzpatrick also turned in a double victory, winning both the 100 and 220-yard sprints. He won as he pleased both times, but the 220 in nine and four-fifths seconds, just a fifth above the world mark.

The visitors had little difficulty in taking the 120 and 220-yard hurdles. I. E. Mann, Cambridge, won the former in 15 4-5 seconds, and J. Passmore, Oxford, second, and J. Passmore, H.O.C., third, R. M. N. Tisdall, Cambridge, captured the 220 in 22 1-2 seconds. The pole vault was a fairly easy win for Gilbert of Hamilton, with a mark of ten feet six inches, while the high and broad jumps went to the visitors.

C. G. Gadsby of Oxford took the weight throwing competition, putting the 16-pound shot 39 feet 10 inches.

Athletics Drop Two In a Row to White Sox

But Connie Mack's Big Worry Is Loss Of Mickey Cochrane

Philadelphia Catcher Out of Game With Injured Rib and Mackmen Lose a Couple; Yanks Break Even and Lessen Gap Between Leaders in American League; Giants Gain Slight Advantage in National by Taking Doubleheader From Reds; Cards Set Scoring Record.

Events over the week-end were not exactly beer and skittles for Cornelius McGillicuddy, what with the loss of Mickey Cochrane and two ball games, but even so, the Philadelphia Athletics cannot yet be said to be in need of a wall against which to place their backs.

The New York Yankees were able to get only an even break in their first two skirmishes at St. Louis, and the Mackmen were left with a lead of eight and a half games.

The Mackmen were more concerned over the return of Cochrane to the line-up than with the immediate fight at hand. The loss of a 365 batter who also is one of the leading catchers in either league never did any team a bit of good, not even one like the Athletics.

Cochrane is suffering from a fractured rib, injured by a pitched ball in the Washington series. The fracture, at first mistaken for a bruise, was not discovered until the Philadelphia club reached Chicago.

EARLY RETURN
Physicians with the ball team promised an early return of Mickey to the lineup, but declined to specify any particular date.

Having shaded the Athletics by 5-4 on Saturday, the Chicago White Sox did a more thorough job yesterday to win by 9-2. Ted Lyons halted the Mackian attack, while the Sox climbed upon Earnshaw, Yerkes, Shores and Rommel for eleven safe hits.

At St. Louis, Hoyt failed for the Yanks after the champions had stretched a winning streak to eight games by taking the opener on Saturday. Fitted against Alvin Crowder, the former Brooklyn schoolboy put on a new pitching battle for six rounds.

needed it after the 28 to 6 St. Louis victory in the second game on Saturday. This cry not only broke the Cardinals' losing streak at eleven, but hit a new modern major league record for total runs by one club in a game.

SHUT OUT
Fred Fitzsimmons of the Giants ran his string of scoreless innings against the Reds to 27 by shutting out Jack Hendricks' boys again yesterday as the western invasion of the polo grounds began with a double-header. Fitz won the first and the last games of the series in Cincinnati last month, each by the whitewash route, and repeated in the opener yesterday by 8-0. Both Luque and Genewich were knocked from the box in the second game, but Ralph Judd did some fine undertaking at the finish, and the Giants just lasted to win by 8-7.

Home runs by Grantham, Brane, Russell and Comorovsky helped the Pirates defeat Brooklyn by 17-8 yesterday, and so to maintain their lead of half a game over the Cubs, who won in Boston by 15 to 4.

INDIANS GIVE CAPS BATTLE
Local Ball Team Wins Afternoon Session Against Squamish; Nightcap Tied

One run in the afternoon game gave the Victoria Capitals victory over the Squamish Indians, fast-working Senior "B" nine from the North Shore League, in the double-header played at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday. In the first game the Caps came from behind to register an 8-7 win, while the teams battled to a 4-4 draw in an eleven-inning fixture in the evening.

Squamish piled up a six-run lead in the first five innings of the earlier game, getting three runners home in the first, one in the third and two in the sixth, while the local boys went scoreless.

RALLY IN SEVENTH
The Caps drove three runners in during the seventh when Gallagher, iron man in the box for the Tribe, blew up and was replaced by Lindsay. Forbes, first man to bat after the substitution, connected with Lindsay's offering and clouted the ball over the centre field fence for the first home run. Cummings reached first on a single and Copas lobbed the ball over the infield for another safety. Dangerfield's single to centre brought the runners in.

In the following frame Forbes and Cummings again crossed the plate. Cummings, Copas, Dunn and Webster all reached first in the eighth and Forbes knocked out a double to bring in the winning runs.

PITCHING DUEL
Offering the fans one of the longest game seen in the park for years, Norm. Forbes and Gallagher staged a pitching duel in the evening, which had St. Louis out of the game in the Caps' outfield in the seventh, should have resulted in another victory for the locals.

Forbes was smoking in his pitches in great form and whiffed eleven Indians, while Gallagher, with his slow and fast balls and deadly hooks, had the Caps swinging at balls far beyond their reach.

The locals brought in one run in the first frame, while Squamish evened the court in the third. Three more in the fifth gave the Caps a lead that should have accounted for the game, but a rush of errors in the seventh allowed the Indians to tie up the count.

Forbes and Gallagher pitched superb ball for the remainder of the game as their support tightened up to prevent any further score.

ONTARIO MAN NABOB WINNER

Major Prize in Puzzle Contest Goes to Wilfred Flood; Other Money Winners

Widespread interest attaches to the announcement, from the offices of Kelly, Douglas and Company Limited, that the judges have selected the prize winning entries in the great Nabob picture puzzle contest. Cheques covering the prizes, over 200 in number, will be forwarded to the winning contestants immediately.

From the thousands of entries, that of Wilfred Flood of Ottawa, Ontario, was the unanimous choice of the three judges to receive the first prize of $500. The second prize of $100 was awarded to F. P. Wellstead of Vancouver, B.C., while E. R. Henessey of Vancouver, B.C., received the third prize of $50.

In junior class fifty prizes were given for the best entries received from children fifteen years of age and under. Willard Coldbrook of Vancouver, B.C., received the first prize of $50, while second and third prizes of $25 and $15 went to Eileen St. James of Vancouver, B.C., and Willie Woodgate of Port Arthur, Ont.

The prize winners were chosen by the point system, thus insuring full consideration for the particular merits of each entry. This procedure made it impossible for any entry to win an award solely because of additions to the picture puzzle, such as elaborate decoration which would not be available to the ordinary contestant.

The total list of prize winners in both the adult and junior classes, including special prizes for the best entries received each month, has already appeared in this paper. A notable feature of this list is the fact that every western province is splendidly represented and that urban and rural communities share almost equally in the rewards.

WINNING ENTRIES TOUR WEST

In order that the public may have an opportunity of viewing the most outstanding Nabob picture puzzle entries in this contest, arrangements have been made to display them throughout the country. At present they are on display in the offices of the Guaranty Savings and Loan Association, Seymour and Georgia Streets, Vancouver. From there they will be taken to the principal points in each province. Since the announcement of the Nabob picture puzzle contest a flood of comment has reached the packers of Nabob tea and coffee remarking on the fact that the generous prizes in this publicity contest were absolutely free. Consequently the many thousands who sought the $1,500 in prize money did so without being asked to buy or sell anything.

PEASANT CHIEFS IN EUROPE WARN OF WAR DANGER

Berlin, July 8.—Fears of another European war dominated the sessions here Saturday of delegates from all Europe who met to prepare for a great peasants' congress next January.

The delegates all emphasized the dangers threatening the peasantry and discussed counteractive measures. Bishop Fan Noli, former President of Albania, spoke of the ever-present war menace in the Balkans through the conflicting interests of Yugoslavia and Italy, which also involved France as an ally of Yugoslavia.

Joseph Boisseau of the French Confederation Generale des Paysans Travailleurs (Peasant Workers' Confederation) spoke of the rapid industrialization of France, with which the agricultural development had not been able to keep pace. He said the growing antagonism of continental powers would inevitably lead to a new burst unless a strong anti-war front was formed.

There were no Russian delegates present. It was pointed out that this peasant movement had nothing to do with Communism, being only designed to protect the working peasantry which would be badly hit by another war.

Policeman Murdered In Chicago Street

Chicago, July 8.—Patrolman John J. Sweeney was shot and killed by an unidentified assailant on the near North Side of Chicago early yesterday.

Although five fellow officers, called to the neighborhood for various causes, were within 100 feet of Sweeney when he fell at the entrance to a patrol box, no one started to pull a patrol box, all professed not to have seen his assailant.

The authorities are without clues.

NO PASSENGER STOPS

London, July 8.—The Cornish Riviera Express has probably the only "slip" coaches in operation in the world. The train doesn't stop, but by means of a mechanical device releases the sections and continues on its speedy way.

"WE" ARE NOW WEARING PARACHUTES

It's a business trip for Lindy and a pleasure trip for Anne, and, incidentally, the first transcontinental air camping tour on record—this joint of Colonel Lindbergh and his bride, the former Anne Morrow, from New York to Los Angeles. And these snapshots of the famous "Lone Eagle," who doesn't fly alone any more, show him and his young wife as they appear at intermediate points. Above, at the left, Lindy is shown carrying parachutes for Anne and himself. At the right, Anne and Lindy are pictured in flying togs. Below is a close-up of Lindy and Anne, just before taking off. Lindy is inspecting the new T. A. T. transcontinental air-rail system between New York and Los Angeles, and will fly the first eastbound passengers from Los Angeles on July 8. These pictures were taken at Roosevelt Field, L.I. where the Lindberghs took off for Columbus, Ohio, their first stop.

Hon. R. Randolph Bruce Returns From North Confident of Future of That Section of Province; Visited Atlin, Rode Stikine Rapids and Investigated Development in Granby and Stewart Regions.

Full of confidence in the future of northern British Columbia, as the result of his observations, Hon. R. Randolph Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor, returned to the city on Saturday from a tour which took him as far as Atlin. Although His Honor visited the north in his private capacity about twenty years ago, this was his first visit beyond Prince Rupert since he became Lieutenant-Governor.

He returns immensely impressed with what he has seen and convinced that the potentialities of the great north are not adequately realized by most people in the more populous southern sections.

He finds that capital is interesting itself in mining development on a large scale and its engineers and technical advisers are on the ground planning important undertakings. He is convinced that the country is only at the beginning of its mineral development.

LARGE CAMPS VISITED
Important activities of the Granby and Stewart mining companies were visited and His Honor found that these corporations have some of their ablest men on the ground and that large quantities of supplies were flowing into the north, all of which, in his estimation, would prove greatly beneficial to the country as a whole.

His Honor left Vancouver on board the steamer Prince George June 10 and reached Atlin, the most northerly point of his tour at midnight on June 15. Two days were spent in Atlin visiting the various points of interest there. The Governor, a mining man himself, was especially interested in the hydraulic mining operations of the district.

UP THE STIKINE
He left Skagway for Wrangell on June 18 and there took the river boat up the Stikine to Telegraph Creek.

Copenhagen, July 8.—The Danish Olympic cycling champion, Henry Hansen, repeated his Amsterdam victory over the British rider, Frank Southall in the Danish Cycling Club's annual star road race of 116 Kilometers yesterday. Hansen's time was 3.11.50, Southall's 3.16.45.

There was intense interest in the race because of the unpleasantness aroused at Amsterdam, when Hansen won the Olympic title in such phenomenal time that he was alleged to have taken a short cut. Southall was unlucky yesterday, being delayed for nearly three minutes by a puncture.

Fred Niblo Famed Movie Director Here

Panchromatic Film Will Revolutionize Moving Picture Industry, He Says

Acoustic Properties of Average Theatre Poor For Talkie Pictures

"I am looking over the ground in connection with developments that are constantly taking place in the moving picture world, and at the same time I am enjoying my first holiday in three years," said Frederick Niblo, famous director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions, in an interview at the Empress Hotel to-day.

"By that I do not mean that we contemplate the establishment of a studio here. Hollywood is the centre of the moving picture industry and will remain so, but because of the climatic conditions, but because every conceivable need of the producer is instantly available there.

"But we have occasion at times to go farther afield to take special scenes, and Canada, with her wonderful mountain scenery, offers the producer excellent copy.

"He spoke of the desire of the producer to shoot more of the wonder spots of the world and to give due credit to the location in the finished picture.

FINE CAMERA WORK HERE

In modern picture production, he stated, it was impossible to anticipate just where scenes would be taken. British Columbia was not very far from Hollywood and already some very fine camera work in past productions had been the result of locations in this territory, he said.

"So I am making the best of my holiday and am keeping my eyes open for possibilities," explained Mr. Niblo. Within the last three years, wonderful results have been achieved with the "panchromatic film," which admirably reproduces evasive cloud effects and the soft, hazy light of mountain peaks, said Mr. Niblo, discussing the developments that are taking place in moving picture production.

ONCE OPPOSED TO TALKIE

At one time he was opposed to the "talkie" film, but now he is one of its most enthusiastic supporters. Much has been accomplished in perfecting the talkie film, and he said that he had been at the time for the production of the "panchromatic film," which admirably reproduces evasive cloud effects and the soft, hazy light of mountain peaks, said Mr. Niblo, discussing the developments that are taking place in moving picture production.

THE PRODUCTION

Mr. Niblo has just completed the direction of the production of Tolstoy's "Resurrection," which will shortly be presented.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director expressed his genuine pleasure at meeting Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Cleary in Victoria.

"I shall always remember May McAvoy as one of my best stars," he said.

"Well I remember the production of 'Ben Hur' in Rome when Miss McAvoy took the role of Esther. Despite the heat and the poor facilities available at that time for moving picture production in the Italian capital, she could always rely upon her to come forward smiling, no matter what the conditions under which we were acting.

"It was a tremendous production and it went over big, but few realize the difficulties we experienced in producing it."

Mr. and Mrs. Niblo left Hollywood without telling anyone in the movie world where they were going.

They were selected by quota to attend the camp, which is one of the most appreciated functions of the cadet year.

All activities are conducted under Camp Commandant Captain E. M. MacBrayne, M.C., cadet officer commanding Military District No. 11. Major Frank Fairley of the Irish Fusiliers of Vancouver, acting adjutant for the Vancouver detachments, and is being assisted by Major A. C. Bundy, superintendent of physical education and cadet movements in Vancouver for the last twenty-nine years.

Directly over the Mainland boys is Camp Adjutant Major L. A. Elliott, while Captain A. H. Wheadon is in charge of the island groups.

OTHER OFFICERS

Fifteen other officers of Lieutenant ranking officiate as instructors in the various departments of the cadets' activities, while Sergeant-Majors David E. MacBrayne and J. Frost of the P.C.C.I. are taking charge of the physical training corps.

Sergeant-Major Wallace is at the head of all non-commissioned officers. Under these supervisors the boys carry out drills and military exercises as well as sports throughout the day rising to the reveille at 6 o'clock each morning and retiring at 10 o'clock each night.

Plans are now under way to take the Mainland cadets on sightseeing tours of the city.

HEAD OF C.P.R. HOTEL SYSTEM SIZES UP WORK

H. E. Matthews, head of the western hotel system of the Canadian Pacific, arrived in the city to-day in company with J. W. Orrock, engineer of buildings for the C.P.R. of Montreal, and F. E. Hall, vice-president of Carter-Hall-Adinger & Company Limited, the hotel general contractors.

The three visitors were in conference most of the morning on the site of the new building.

BIG FIRE BREAKS OUT AT COWICHAN

All available fire fighting forces were being rushed from Duncan this afternoon to Camp 10 of the Victoria Lumber Company, where a threatening blaze gave cause for serious alarm. The fire broke out late this afternoon and great volumes of smoke visible from Duncan and from vantage points in Victoria indicated that with the present dry spell the fire carried a threat of sweeping extensive territory.

CRYSTAL SET OWNERS THRILL AT EXPERIENCE

Hear Broadcast of Service in Westminster Abbey and Then Listen to Australia

Through the enterprise of the National Broadcasting Company, whose New York station picked up London on a short wave, Victorians were able to listen to the Thanksgiving service for the recovery of King George held in Westminster Abbey.

London was switched on at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, and the clear voice of the English announcer was heard.

"We are broadcasting throughout the British Empire, and America, the Thanksgiving service to His Majesty," he said.

Then Westminster Abbey's organ was heard, and the service was carried out under the direction of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The choir singing was superb. The service, which had begun at 2 was over by 2:30.

On the whole, the reception here through the Seattle station, KOMO, was quite satisfactory. Even crystal set owners had the pleasure of listening to London.

An added surprise was occasioned when New York, waiting for London to say goodnight, picked up Sydney, Australia. The announcers at Sydney were already just through with their day's work at 3 a.m. Victoria time. One or two of them were making up jokes, while another was trying to get into touch with Montreal. He kept saying, "Hello Montreal, this is Sydney speaking."

Victoria crystal set owners were able to listen to both England and Australia within half an hour of each other.

After Australia bid "goodnight," the New York announcer said how thrilled the Americans were with the West- coast Abbey programme, and conveyed America's best wishes for the full recovery of His Majesty.

Sees Canada As Keystone Of Empire

W. Herbert Garrison, World Traveler, Addresses Canadian Club at Empress

Foresees Establishment of True Imperial Parliament

W. Herbert Garrison, world traveler extraordinary, graphically portrayed the wonders of the British Empire this afternoon at the Empress Hotel, when he addressed a luncheon gathering of the Canadian Club which was attended by more than 100 leading citizens. Mark W. Graham, president, occupied the chair.

Stating that he had been speaking to Empire audiences since 1878, and that he had traveled 400,000 miles, Mr. Garrison remarked:

"The half was never told of this Canada of yours, the keystone of the Empire."

He was enthusiastic in praise of Vancouver Island, expressing desire to remain here for the remainder of his life. "You will think this a platitude, but I am speaking from the heart," he said.

Mr. Garrison praised the development accomplished by Canada despite a scanty population. He believed the land could carry twelve times the present populace.

The work of the Empire markets board was touched upon, the speaker being confident that the people of Canada desired greater British markets.

BOND OF AFFECTION

Mr. Garrison told of the grave hours of His Majesty's illness and recalled sad moments when rumor declared King George had passed. He doubted if history recorded such popularity of any sovereign as that held by King George the Good.

"How is this Empire held together? Not by steel bands but solely by affection for the Royal House," he said.

Stock taking of the Empire shows it to be eight times the size of the Persian Empire of Darius, seven times the Roman Empire and one fourth the total land area of the world.

He pointed out that the British held 100 of the key and gate positions of the world, and these strategic posts eliminated the need of an army of 6,000,000 men. Sixty-six per cent of the world's shipping was British, and in the Empire were included 454,000,000 souls. He contrasted the Empire to be founded on the Bible instead of the military jackboot.

COMPANY OF NATIONS

A nation and a company of nations was a true description of the Empire, which strangely, was no Empire at all in the older sense. Mr. Garrison hoped to see a world empire, as distinguished from the British Parliament, on lines suggested by the late Sir George R. Parkin, for settlement of matters affecting Empire affairs.

He also hoped to see initiation of an Empire Valhalla. Telling of notable men whose development of the Empire would be so perpetuated, he foresaw in each community a memorial to its leading citizens.

"I plead for the memory of the great men of the Empire to be kept green," he said, "by living instances of national forgetfulness of her heroes."

WIDE BOUNDARIES

Mr. Garrison told of British distribution of the Bible and activity in support of missions. "Have you ever answered a race of which you can say 'I had rather belong to that people than this in which I was born?' I have not," he said.

Mr. Garrison described Canada as "God's own country," praising the Rocky Mountains as overwhelming in grandeur, thirteen times as vast as the European Alps. He was surprised to learn that many Eastern Canadians go to Europe for sightseeing without having first seen Canada's Rockies.

"I want you to feel with me a pride of Empire," he said in conclusion, reiterating a plea for a great confederation of Saxons peoples to maintain and promote the peace of the world.

SELF SUPPORTING

John Cochrane moved the vote of thanks, remarking on the opportune time for a movement to make the Empire self supporting in all respects. He was applauded when he said the progress of the Empire gave cause to feel gratified. Incidentally he paid a warm tribute to the Canadian Pacific Railway as an outstanding organization, and the business of North America. It was the duty of good citizens to carry on the task initiated by the great men of the past. Mr. Cochrane remarked in conclusion.

Every Child Deserves This Priceless Opportunity

THE ability to play the piano is a social asset of first importance—and an unfailing source of happiness throughout all life. Every child deserves the privilege of a piano education.

The Sacrifice Is So Little

A piano of prestige, reputation and quality is so easy to purchase—so easy to pay for. For example, we have in our showrooms to-day instruments by Steinway, Heintzman & Co., Mason & Risch and Nordheimer, all of them in a condition as good as new but at about one-half their original cost. The Nordheimer is a beauty... a de luxe model upright in mahogany case with that rich, sweet tone which is distinctly a Nordheimer creation. Cost new $750. You can purchase it for $375 on the very easiest of terms.

WHITNEY LETTER

By Branson, Brown &amp; Co. Ltd.

New York, July 8.—Whitney's of the Wall Street Financial Bureau says today:

EXPECT STRONG WEEK

"With Saturday's session showing up at the process of internal corrective actions has been completed think we can look forward to the coming week with every assurance that, at least for the greater part of it, we will have further advance and a new crop of record prices in sound securities. The reduction of another 1/2 of one percent in bankers' acceptances simply justifies the opinion expressed here at week that you could entirely disregard what have proved to be temporary fluctuations in the call rate and, likewise pay no attention at all to the 'rokers' loans which, while the market is fifteen points into new high territory, did not come up to even their record level."

"Time money will undoubtedly follow the lead given it by the acceptance rate, and the only thing then left or the call rate to give in to the general money picture by placing it below six per cent and possibly, not probably, down to a four per cent rate."

COMMENT

"The food group, under the leadership of Corn Products has shown its colors and is still sufficiently far from its top to warrant purchases at levels more or less advanced from those you have originally given. Pennick and Ford, which have been bought anywhere under $15, Fleischmann in the low 90's, Continental Baking "A", under 90, and Corn Products even at its new high, any price around 105, or for that matter, up to 110, is justified in that it is between 125 and 130 for it. Ludum has started out on sufficient of move to warrant additional purchases any place under 110, while U.S. Steel is providing us with a last minute opportunity to buy it under 200 before it definitely establishes itself well above that figure. Some time back, at a level 20 to 25 points lower than current prices, you were advised to buy Union Pacific. Now advice acceptance of profits between here and 60 with the transferring of these funds into Western Union for corresponding profits. Speaking of taking profits, also advise clinching those Atlantic Refining between here and 40, as well as those now existing in International Telephone and Telegraph between 110-120. Pullman is temporarily a little slow, but so was Ludum for a time, so get it in your hand while you can do so around 90. Kamecoit at 1 Anaconda still remain in logical purchase territory for the same applying to American and Foreign Power, which while it may lose a couple more days, should be bought between 115-120. On the curb, Insurance Shares is the outstanding purchase as it represents a diversified position in the cross section of all that is best in the security markets upon which nobody is better fitted to pass than the bank and insurance companies whose stocks are in turn, held by Insurance Shares. Buy Pitney Bowes, particularly if obtainable under 30, or if not, why not under its old top, as well as U.S. Finishing under 150, for an eventual price of 200.

BIGGER AND BETTER MARKETS FORECAST

New York, July 8.—The Financial Press of New York in its comment on the financial outlook for the last half of the year, says:

"The outlook is brighter than most people realize for a resumption of bigger and better security markets and it is our belief that the financial conditions underlying nearly all industries are sound, corporation earnings for the past six months are exceptionally favorable and the trade outlook indicates a continuation of good business for the balance of 1929."

"It is the feeling of many careful financial observers that no power on earth can keep the public from participating actively in our security markets as long as present prosperous business conditions continue in this country, offering to the investor and trader the opportunity to share in the increasing equities and future earnings possibilities of our growing and successful corporations."

"It is gratifying to note that the sales of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange totaled $7,685,790 shares January 1 to June 29, inclusive, this year, or 122,275,802 shares ahead of the corresponding period last year and a gain over the similar periods in previous years of 264,666,502 shares as compared with 1927, an increase of 237,924,133 shares compared with 1928."

"Our canvass of the financial situation leads us to believe that the twelve months of 1929 will prove to be one of the best years in the security markets, industrial world and in the business field."

Baker, Ore., July 8.—John C. Hoefler of Cove claims to own a genuine prehistoric violin made in 1736. He bought it years ago in an auction shop for $35. At present it is all patched up and looks like any old violin, but Hoefler claims it's a "Strad" and the violin is still down more than twenty points from the year's high. The stock

STEEL BREAKS 200 IN RENEWED RISE, OTHER "BLUE CHIPS" SOAR TO NEW HIGHS

(B.C. Bond Over Leased Wires)

New York, July 8.—In a climb of 5 1/2 points to-day, U. S. Steel common stock shot through the 200 point, which it hit last week, and established a new record high for itself at 201 3/4.

Another "blue chip" feature of the market to-day was New York Central, which moved up four points to another record high at 213 3/4.

At the close of the market the Dow Jones average of thirty industrials stood at 346.55, up 1.89 points for the day, and for twenty falls at 169.48, up 1.48 points for the day.

Money rose from 7 to 9 per cent.

Sales for the day totaled 3,516,800 shares.

Among the other issues to make new high records to-day were Dupont, Pennick and Ford, Simmon Red, Missouri Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Atlantic Refining, Union Carbide, Underwood, Allied Chemical, Lima Locomotive, Ludlum Steel, Youngstown Steel, American Locomotive, Corn Products, National Dairy Products.

TOWN TOPICS ADVICE

New York, July 8.—Town Topics to-day sent the following statement on the market to its clients:

"Corn Products' recent recommendation in these columns reached a new high price as did National Dairy Products. Fleischmann Yeast should keep the food stocks moving, until some definite decision has been announced."

"Some motor shares, including Chrysler, Hudson, General Motors, Hupp, Marmon are in good technical position and we have an idea that they may be featured this week. All were previously recommended a week or so ago."

"Utilities, after several days of profit-taking, seem ready to turn again. We are particularly recommending the shares of American and Foreign Power, which is still down more than twenty points from the year's high. The stock is controlled by the Electric Bond and Share Company and Little is outstanding."

"Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas are also worth following, should they become bullishly active on the tape. These specialties are moving and seem worth holding for higher prices."

"Continental Baking A, Remington Rand, Radio, Keith Orpheum, Davison Chemical, Ludlum Steel, Allied Chemical, Goodrich, U.S. Rubber—these are worth picking up on further dips. Also U.S. Steel, New York Central, Reading, Cash Register, Chicago Northwestern, Auburn Motors and Loose Wiles."

BULLISH ON AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL

New York, July 8.—Wall Street Mirror to-day says that the community of interest between Allied Chemical and American International Corporation should mean higher prices for the latter, as Allied Chemical is steadily climbing toward the 400 mark.

New York, July 8.—Midway reviews of the current business situation generally forecast a high rate of activity for the second half of the year, with perhaps some recession from the record-breaking first six months.

The general assumption is that credit conditions will continue somewhat easier during the coming weeks, contrasted with the earlier part of the year. These two factors, it is believed, indicate that the recent market enthusiasm has been based on sound foundations. Disregarding temporary fluctuations and unforeseen events, the immediate outlook for the better grade issues, in our opinion, is distinctly favorable.

Continued accumulation of orders will necessitate a high rate of operations for American Locomotive for several months to come and it seems fair to assume that earnings for the full year may substantially exceed $15 a share. On this basis, the common stock appears to be distinctly cheap at current levels.

While the motor group is not in particular favor at the present time, it is entirely possible that the demand for new cars for the balance of the year may exceed earlier estimates. One of the most favorably situated in this group at this time is Hudson. It is estimated that earnings for the first half exceeded $6 a share, which would more than cover the dividend requirements for the entire year.

Hornblower and Weeks to-day issued the following:

"While we would hold off buying stocks at the moment we feel that the first reactions at any rate will be of technical proportions and that trading profits may very well accrue later in the year in stocks bought on favorable opportunities."

"Predicted on this reasoning, the food stocks seem to us the logical group to play, and we would take advantage of any recession in Fleischmann and Postum as the leaders, and Corn Products, which has again established itself in new high ground, to buy them. Also in connection with the leadership of Corn Products, we believe Pennick and Ford is very well bought since it could logically fit into either of the newly formed food stock holding companies."

SURE OF OUTLOOK

H. P. Bliss this afternoon said:

"Realization sales became quite heavy around midday, but absorption is very steady, and, aside from irregularity, the market stood the test very well. Late in the session the list took its cue from Steel common, which was pushed rapidly through 200, and which at the close of the day was the outstanding feature or strength."

"This performance of the acknowledged market leader encourages sentiment more than any other development of the day, it being argued that if interested sponsoring Steel common were sure enough of the ground to push stock into new high territory, they must be without apprehension as to the internal state of the market, and also as to the trend of money rates."

Nan's eyes remained sternly on his flushed face as she slowly drew the folded sheet of paper from her pocket. "Read this, Mr. Crawford, then tell me what you honestly believe I think of you."

The man who was to stand trial as an embezzler took the offered sheet and unfolded it gingerly, but the high color drained out of his face before he had read half of it.

"What the devil? So you listened at the keyhole, did you, you little sneak? By God, I'll see that Morgan can't see you."

"Do you think he will—when he has read that?" Nan asked steadily, scornfully. "He'll thank me for having saved him from the dishonor of defending a man who is guilty."

Crawford in spite of his intense anger, took another glance at the transcribed notes. Then he laughed harshly: "Rather jumping to conclusions, aren't you, my girl? This isn't a confession! It's just—"

"Just a neat little job of tampering with a witness," Nan said quietly. "A practice which John Curtis Morgan has never condoned and which will cause him to throw the case out of this office as soon as he sees it—if he sees it!" she added significantly.

"Oh! So that's your game?" Crawford laughed with sudden, almost ludicrous relief. "All you flappers are alike! I guess you can feature that 'Little Nan Carroll, the priceless pearl of private secretaries, blackmailing clients behind her boss's back! Well—you'll get your satisfaction out of what you want!" he concluded savagely, as he tore the sheet of paper into minute bits.

"No, that's not exactly what I want," Nan said with quietness that had a deadly sort of emphasis. "By the way, I have two copies of that document, and it would take a cleverer man than you are to find them. But I'll promise you not to show them to John Curtis Morgan on any condition."

"Well—what's the condition?" Crawford demanded thickly.

CHAPTER XI

"The condition," Nan Carroll began slowly, "is that you give Iris Morgan up!"

"Iris Morgan?" Crawford repeated the name violently, but his violence there was relief as well as anger. "Do you mean to insinuate—"

"I'm not insinuating," Nan corrected him implacably. "I have an incontestable proof of your relations with Mrs. Morgan as I have of your witness-fixing. And the only price for my silence in both instances is that that illicit relationship shall be terminated this moment."

"If you know so damned much, why haven't you tattled to Morgan?" Crawford snarled.

"Because I am his friend, and have his happiness at heart," Nan answered evenly. "He loves his wife. Knowing what I know about you and Iris Morgan would wreck his life."

"That being the case," Crawford caught her up triumphantly, "you aren't in a position to make me keep any promise I might make you."

don't give me your promise now to have nothing more to do with Iris Morgan, I'll place all evidence I have against you, both in connection with this case and as regards his wife, in Mr. Morgan's hands to-night. He will throw your case out of this office, and when he does so you will stand convicted in the opinion of the public, which includes the jury, you know, for everyone knows that John Curtis Morgan refuses to defend anyone of whose innocence he is not thoroughly convinced."

"God!" he choked, flinging up an arm to hide his convulsed face. "Well—and if I promise?"

"If you promise to leave Iris Morgan alone, and keep your word, I'll perform my duties as Mr. Morgan's secretary to the best of my ability," Nan said grimly. "Of course," she added, "you will not be so foolish as to try to 'fix' another witness."

"Why should I?" Crawford blustered, color coming slowly back into his cheeks. "I'm innocent, I tell you—"

"You needn't bother," Nan interrupted coldly. "I'm waiting for your promise, and that promise is that you will not again make love to Iris Morgan."

"You will have no more clandestine meetings with her, that you will not communicate with her by letter or telephone—"

"Hold on!" Crawford growled. "How am I going to let her know that it's all off between us, if I'm not to telephone or write her?"

"I was going to say: with the exception of one telephone call in which I have to make it quite clear to her that you find it expedient to drop the affair. You can tell her—and truthfully—that someone 'knows all' and that being acquainted to go on with the relationship. Make the call from a pay station and be sure that you are not overheard."

"You think of every little thing," Nan said. "Crawford sneered. "But what has stumped me is why you're going to all this trouble to save Morgan's wife for him, when you're in love with him yourself."

Nan's steady brown eyes did not flicker, but her lips were white as she said, still in that deadly quiet voice: "I haven't received your promise yet, Mr. Crawford."

"Of course I promise!" Crawford flung at her bitterly. "What else have you left me to do? Give me a Bible and I'll swear on it, if you like."

"I'll have ways of knowing if you fail to keep your promise," Nan said, ignoring his last words. "Good-night, Mr. Crawford."

"Listen, Nan," Crawford begged, suddenly humble. "I know Morgan sets a lot of store on your opinion and help in working up his cases. You won't work against me with him, will you?"

Nan, busy with papers on Morgan's desk did not look up. "I am not working for the prosecution, Mr. Crawford, but for Mr. Morgan, who is unfortunately the attorney for the defense in this case. I shall continue to try to earn my salary."

"By heaven, you're a cold-blooded little devil!" Crawford snapped, but he walked almost jauntily to the door that led to the outer office.

During the next two weeks, which ended in the opening of the trial of Herbert S. Crawford on the charge of embezzling funds of the Mid-West Packing Company of which he was president, Nan Carroll had good reason to believe that Crawford was keeping the promise she had wrung from him. Morgan himself told her that Crawford had shown the good sense to discontinue his "friendly" visits to the home of his counsel, lest reporters comment too suggestively on the intimacy of the accused and his lawyer, and Iris Morgan's disconcerted, restless, unhappy face, when she brought its lovelessness to her husband's office, spoke more loudly than any words of Crawford's could have done.

When Crawford and Iris met in the lawyer's office no one but Nan could have detected the strain and artificiality of their manner, but the pain and hunger in Iris's blue-green eyes when they devoured the blond hand-someness of her erst-while lover convinced Nan that Crawford was keeping his promise. In spite of her contempt for Iris, Nan was sometimes moved to pity for the woman who was obviously so much in love with a man she could not have.

When at last, on Monday, December 19, the case was formally opened in Judge Hawell's court, Iris Morgan sat in a reserved seat in the first row, immediately behind those chairs that were traditionally sacred to reporters and feature writers. She had wanted to sit at the counsel table, beside the defendant, but Crawford himself had cautioned her that it would not be seconded.

Nan knew that Iris stayed at the courthouse the whole dreary first day, sitting through the slow process of impugning a jury for the accomplice her husband to his office after court had adjourned.

DATE SET FOR SUMMER SHOW

Open Air Event Will Be Held By Victoria Horticultural Society This Year

The Victoria Horticultural Society will hold its sixth annual summer show on Friday and Saturday, July 19 and 20.

A new innovation to the society is being experimented with this year, in staging an open air show. It is exceedingly fortunate in having what should prove an ideal location in the hard tennis courts of the Empress Hotel. This is made possible by the courtesy of the C.P.R. Just what will be the preponderant feature in exhibits is somewhat difficult to forecast. It is generally recognized that it has been a backward season. This will permit a number of exhibits being shown that have been over in previous years. Small fruits should be a feature this year, those of exhibitive quality previous years having been over before the day of the show. Efforts are being made whereby an attractive exhibition for fruits, flowers and vegetables will be on show. The executive committee realizes the value of the larger floral exhibits from an artistic point of view, and will again feature the two classes that will consist of one section of thirty square feet of potted plants and a similar size to care for cut flowers. Exhibitors in these classes have to note that the awards in these will be made on three points, variety of specimen, quality and artistic effect. The challenge cups of the society will again go up for competition and it is expected a larger number of competitors will be competing for the honor of possession of them for the present year. Prize lists, which contain classes for all kinds of exhibitors, are being made up and will be a matter how small their exhibit, can be obtained from all floral stores, or from the secretary, F. E. Boulter, 538 Obed Avenue.

WOMAN TELLS HOW SHE KILLED MAN

Napierville, Ill., July 8—Laura Weaver, twenty-one, described by police as possessing Amazonian strength, yesterday confessed she had strangled her common law husband, Wilbur Kitesman, fifty-two, and then burned the body near Annawan, Ill.

The body was found at the roadside funeral pyre last week.

Miss Weaver, who was employed in a factory in Wyoming, Ill., was arrested at the home of her sister here Saturday night, after the burned body of Kitesman had been identified. She readily confessed, according to officers, and told how she had killed the man at her home in Wyoming last Sunday because she could not cure him of drinking liquor.

The young woman told of carrying the body to her automobile and driving to the spot near Annawan, where it was burned.

A long series of punishments inflicted on the victim, a cook also employed in Wyoming, because of his drinking, was related by Miss Weaver, police said.

She told of sewing him in a blanket on one occasion and of keeping him there for four hours while he kicked and struggled until he promised to stop drinking and coming home in argumentative moods.

Smart Doings of Animals

The Dog Which Saved Frederick Frederick the Great once owed his life to the sagacity of a pet dog. Her name was Biche.

One day when Frederick was reconnoitering the position of the Austrians he had to flee from a party of enemy hussars. Rounding a curve, out of their sight, he hid under a small bridge. Taking Biche, in his arms, he whispered, "Quiet, Biche, quiet."

The little animal generally was noisy and a great barker. But she understood their situation so well that she scarcely breathed until the Austrians had passed over the bridge and gotten far away.

The enemy later captured Biche, but returned her to her master. Frederick wept at sight of her.

French Lad Loved to Study Life of Forest

"Jean! Jean!" Jean de la Fontaine's father called anxiously. There was no answer. "Jean!" he called again. He looked about, but there was no sign of Jean, and the father could not quite decide whether to be worried or angry. He was commissioner of waters and forests in France, and it was part of his duty to visit the foresters in their huts. On such trips

he always took Jean with him, for the boy loved to study the birds and animals in the woods. However, he had a way of disappearing, and the father was always threatening to leave Jean at home if he did not follow him more closely. The father turned back along the path which they had followed. Suddenly his eyes caught sight of Jean. The boy was lying flat on his stomach, at one side of the path, studying an anthill, watching with wondering eyes, the actions of the ants, having quite forgotten that he had fallen behind his father. The lessons learned in the woods never forsook him. When he grew up and became a writer, he published a book of fables, all about animals and birds. One of the most famous of these is the story of the busy ant and the grasshopper who danced all summer. Fontaine was born on July 8, 1621.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Milk Pitcher

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

By HOWARD R. GARDNER

"Uncle Wiggily," the rabbit gentleman called to him one morning. "I wish you would put on your best red necktie this afternoon."
"Why so?" asked Mr. Longears. "Do you think my red tie will be a good match for my pink nose?"
"No," answered the rabbit lady. "But we are going to have company for tea and I thought you would want to look pretty."
"Oh, yes, of course I do," said Uncle Wiggily. "Who is coming to have tea with us?"
"Uncle Butter and Aunt Lettie," replied Mrs. Longears.
"The goats!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, but he did not speak those words derogatory or casting-up like, as you might say "the poor fish" or the "dumb-bells" or anything like that. For Uncle Butter and Aunt Lettie were really goats and proud of it.
"Yes, they are coming," went on Mrs. Longears. "It is going to have strawberries and cream for tea and I thought if you put on your red necktie it would match the color of the strawberries."

He stubbed his paw

"Why, of course," said Uncle Wiggily and he smiled to himself for he was just a little bit proud. Not very, but just enough to make him want to look nice when company came.
"And another thing!" said the rabbit lady as Uncle Wiggily was about to hop away over the fields and through the woods. "Will you stop at Mrs. Moo Cow's stable on your way home and bring some milk and cream for the berries and tea?"
"Yes, I'll do that," promised Uncle Wiggily.
"And don't forget to wear your red necktie," said his wife.
"I'll remember!" promised the rabbit gentleman.
But so many things happened to Uncle Wiggily soon after he hopped away from his hollow stump bungalow that he quite forgot about his red necktie and about bringing the milk and cream for the strawberries that were to be put on the tea table for Uncle Butter and Aunt Lettie.
First of all, as the rabbit was hopping along, he stubbed his paw and fell into a bramble bush. And, though he did not scratch out both his eyes, as did the man in the story, still Uncle Wiggily scratched his pink nose. And while he was rubbing his sore nose, out of the bramble bush flew some bumble bees, who had their nest there and they were angry, thinking the Fox was trying to get their honey. They were ready to sting, but when they saw it was Uncle Wiggily, they were sorry for him and gave him some honey to rub on his scratched face.
"That was very sweet of you," said Uncle Wiggily to the Bumblebees.
Then he hopped on and soon he had another adventure, where he saw

To-morrow's Horoscope

TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1929

This should be a fairly fortunate day, according to astrology, which finds certain aspects fairly fortunate.
It is a day supposed to be especially stimulating and encouraging to women who should make the best of business opportunities.
For beauty culture and athletic development there is a good sign that should be particularly favorable to girls.
Again the seers prophesy for America a race of people of great physical symmetry and remarkable beauty.
Two years hence there will be a tremendous impulse toward the conservation of health and the cultivation of perfection in body as well as mind, astrologers prophesy.
Athletics will attain an even greater importance than they hold now and will be pursued with wisdom instead of enthusiasm, it is forecast.
Under this planetary rule women will do well to look after their financial affairs. Many will attain prominence as bankers within the next decade, it is predicted.
There is a sign indicating numerous marriages where either the bride or bridegroom is of apparent superiority in wealth or station.
While this configuration prevails it is well not to make any important decisions or investments.
Deception is supposed to be easier to practice under this way than in other aspects and truth may be used more seldom even than usual.
It is not a fortunate day for making new friends of opposite sex. Wolves in sheep's clothing may be abroad.
Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a year in which they pass much time among friends of fellow club members. The society is good for general health and prosperity.
Children born on this day probably will have an inventive or a scientific trend of mind. These subjects of Cancer are usually versatile and exceedingly adaptable.
Elias Howe, inventor, was born on this date, 1819. Carel Jacobus Beuhr, celebrated Dutch painter, 1812, also claimed this as a birthdate.

a poor old stone that had been lying on one side so long that it was quite tired out.
"Please turn me over," said the old, tired stone.
"Surely!" said Uncle Wiggily. With his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch Mr. Longears turned the stone over on its other side and very thankful it was.
Then Uncle Wiggily hopped back to his bungalow and the first thing his wife asked him was:
"Did you bring the milk and cream for the strawberries we are going to give Uncle Butter and Aunt Lettie for tea?"
"No, I didn't," said Mr. Longears. "I am sorry, but so many things happened that I quite forgot."
"What about your red necktie?" asked Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzy. "I have been looking for it up in your room, but I can't find it."
"Oh, I remember now!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "I gave my red tie away to a tramp dog. I never thought I would want it."
"Dear me!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "My tea party will be spoiled! You won't wear a red tie and we have no cream for the berries."
"I'll hop right over to Mrs. Moo Cow's stable now and get the cream!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And then I'll hop to the store and buy a new red necktie."
He hopped off in such a hurry that he forgot to take a pitcher with him to hold the cow lady's milk. And when she was ready to give it to him he had nothing to put it in.
"Dear me! How stupid of me!" said Mr. Longears. "But Mrs. Moo Cow, looking down in the grass, said:
"I see where some pitcher plants are growing. Pick two of their flowers and they will hold my milk and cream." So very enough the blossoms of the pitcher plant were just the right shape and very nicely they held the cow's milk and cream. She filled them full for Uncle Wiggily, who hopped home in time for the goats' strawberry tea. And Nurse Jane picked a big red flower for Uncle Wiggily to wear in place of his red necktie, so all was well. It was a lovely strawberry tea party and everybody was happy.
And if the hose will sprinkle some vin gar on the chocolate cake to make it taste like a lemon pie, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the white rabbit.
